Bevin Says Crisis May Cause Britain To Peg Army

Demobilizing Won't Be Continued Unless Berlin Tension Ends, Commons Is Told

London, July 29 (P).—The British government may halt the demobilization of its armed forces "in a few days" if the Berlin crisis is not settled, Foreign Secretary Bevin said today.

Bevin told the Commons in a carefully worded statement that he hoped the crisis will be settled, and that steps are now being taken in Moscow to determine whether there is a possibility of negotiations that would end the entire cold war in Europe between East and West.

"We feel as a government that if matters are to be pressed, which I hope they will not be, to the point that we have to exercise defensive measures in conjunction with that one matter and put permanent organization of our defenses into another category," he said.

"In our calculation we did not assume that the policy of our wartime Allies would lead to a situation which might involve use of force," the foreign secretary declared.

"The situation which has now arisen has, of course, compelled us to reexamine the whole position. His Majesty's government are determined to take any measures which seem necessary to meet the situation."

Bevin's announcement that the government is considering stopping demobilization came after Winston Churchill, the Conservative leader, warned that the dispute with Russia "is very serious and might easily become one of life and death."

Speaking a few hours after American and British envoys had arrived in Moscow to explore the possibilities of negotiation—with the lifting of the Berlin blockade as a preliminary condition—Bevin said he hoped the new diplomatic steps "will lead to peace and security in Europe for us all."

He thus confirmed what a responsible British official yesterday first reported—that the three Western powers have agreed on the conditions not only for negotiations on Berlin and even Germany, but all Europe as well.

He said the decision as to East-West negotiations will "probably be taken on the highest levels," a possible indication that it might be put up to Premier Stalin.

Doctor's Wrong Cancer Diagnosis Costs $25,200

London, July 29 (P).—An American was awarded $25,200 damages today because a doctor told him six years ago that he had cancer and would live only a few months.

James Forbes Whiteford, an American consulting engineer, said he sold his business at a loss and went back to the United States to die after hearing Dr. John Bowman Hunter's diagnosis.

Whiteford brought suit after an American surgeon found no evidence of cancer.

Justice Sir Norman Birkett said Hunter was negligent in not making a microscopic examination and in not using a cystoscope.

Accident in Night Club

2 Vanishing Policemen Seized After Girl Is Shot in Cafe

R. H. Holifield Dorothy Kilmer W. W. Edmondson

Principals in Accidental Shooting at After-Hours Club

Two Eleventh Precinct policemen were charged last night with assault with a dangerous weapon in connection with the accidental shooting of a 20-year-old girl early yesterday in a 14th st. cafe.

The girl, Miss Dorothy Kilmer, of 1314 Fairmont st. n.w., was critically wounded in the shooting which occurred in the Palm Grove Club, 1601 14th st. n.w.

The policemen, identified as Pvt. Wayne William Edmondson, 22, and Roland H. Holifield, 26, were immediately suspended by Acting Police Superintendent Floyd A. Truscott. They were released in $2000 bond each pending appearance in Municipal Court today. Maj. Robert J. Barrett, chief of police, is on his vacation.

Police said the two policemen left the cafe after the shooting and went to their homes without making a report. This, police officials said, was one of the "worst" parts of the case.

According to Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, chief of the homicide squad, Edmondson, after appearing at headquarters, made a statement in which he admitted he was holding Holifield's service revolver when it was accidentally discharged.

Miss Kilmer, who before she collapsed had time to tell police the shooting was accidental, was in critical condition at Emergency Hospital last night, her left side paralyzed from the hip down, according to doctors.

When Holifield appeared for duty at 4 p. m. in the Eleventh Precinct Station in Anacostia, he was ordered to report to headquarters. When he arrived there he had Edmondson with him.

Witnesses scanning policemen's pictures had pointed out Holifield's to detectives after the other members of the force had been questioned by homicide squad detectives, all of whom had been mobilized by Lieutenant Flaherty and worked on the case all day.

Lieutenant Flaherty said Edmondson readily admitted the accidental shooting and said both he and Holifield returned to their homes after the incident. Edmondson lives at 2210 Shannon pl. s.e., and Holifield at 4000 Ely pl. s.e. Both are single.

A police official said the men had admitted having a few drinks. However, the official added that witnesses stated the policemen were not drunk.

While Edmondson, who was dressed in brown shirt and slacks at the time of the shooting, was on his way off, Holifield had gone off duty at midnight and still wore his uniform, though without cap or badge, witnesses said.

Several witnesses, including George Stott, manager of the club, told detectives the man in brown was accompanied by another man wearing a police-type uniform, but without a badge or cap.

Stott and Howard Patterson, assistant manager, said Miss Kilmer, a former part-time check girl at the Palm Grove Club, has been a frequent customer at the place. She was accompanied yesterday by a sailor and a married couple, who disappeared after the shooting, police said.

Patterson had called police to the club at about 4 a. m. to investigate a man who was bootlegging whisky across the street, according to his complaint. Stott said the two policemen overheard Patterson's phone call and told him he didn't need to call the police. They then went out, he said.

Police in a scout car responded to the call, and in arresting the alleged bootlegger, saw the two men, whom they thought they recognized as policemen, without See SHOOT, Page 12, Column 5.

The Intrastate Commerce Commission has a similar AB&W application applying to interstate fares before it.

Under the SCC-approved boost, the bus company's present 5-cent fares will go up to 10 cents single fare, with two tokens for 15 cents; 10-cent fares will jump to 15 cents straight, or a 7½-cent token plus a nickel.

In testimony before the SCC, AB&W officials said it was virtually impossible to separate intrastate from interstate business because the same equipment and operators were used on both.

Bus Line General Manager Beverly C. May said high cost of supplies and materials and wage hikes caused a loss of $44,417 to the line for the first quarter of 1948.

But if both the SCC and the ICC approved its fare requests, the company said, it would realize net annual profit of about $95,000.

Miami Bus Line Seeks To Lower Fare to Dime

Miami, Fla., July 29 (P).—A reduction in bus fares in an attempt to lure more riders is planned by the Miami Transit Co.

William D. Pawley, president of the company, announced today he will ask permission to try a straight 10-cent fare. Cash fare is now 15 cents with tickets 10 for $1.

Pawley said his company wanted to try the lower fare "to see if it won't work better and encourage more people to ride buses."

Roosevelt's Guards Suspicious Secret Service Guns Covered De Gaulle at Casablanca

Secret Service guards of President Roosevelt were so suspicious of Gen. Charles De Gaulle at the Casablanca conference that they kept him covered with their guns throughout his meetings with the President.

The story is told by Robert E. Sherwood in a Collier's article on "The Secret Papers of Harry L. Hopkins."

De Gaulle, now leader of the Rightist Rally of the French People (RPF), had been very reluctant to join Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill when they met in North Africa in January, 1943.

Foreign Minister Anthony Eden had to argue with De Gaulle in London for nearly a week before he agreed to go.

Relatives, Friends And Charity Share Estate Valued at 15 Million Dollars

The Washington Times-Herald is given outright to seven top executives of that newspaper under the will of Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson.

Total value of the estate left by Mrs. Patterson, owner, editor and publisher of the Times-Herald who died unexpectedly last Saturday, is estimated by her lawyers at a "minimum" of 15 million dollars.

Disposition of the newspaper, and her bequests to relatives, friends and a large number of charities, were disclosed when the will was filed yesterday in District Court.

The gift of her newspaper to the seven employees was a climactic act of benevolence in the dramatic career of "Clay" Patterson, who died unexpectedly in 1900 with a cable to William Randolph Hearst, asking that she be made editor of the Washington Herald.

The executives named to share ownership of what is now a 24-hour "around the clock" publication, are:

William C. Shelton, general manager.

Frank C. Waldrop, editor-in-chief.

Edmund F. Jewell, advertising director.

Michael W. Flynn, supervising managing editor.

H. A. Robinson, circulation director.

J. Irving Bell, mechanical superintendent.

Mason S. Peters, night managing editor.

Original Will Named Porter

An eighth person, C. B. Porter, was named as one of the beneficiary-owners under the original will, dated November 7, 1946. But Porter, Times-Herald treasurer until a year ago, left the newspaper entirely "about two months ago," officials said, and thus does not share in the estate because the will provided the newspaper beneficiaries must be employed at the time of Mrs. Patterson's death.

The seven new owners of the Times-Herald also were named in the newspaper's real estate and building at 1317-21 H st. n.w., "and the contents thereof," plus "all assets and liabilities of this enterprise as they exist at the time of my death."

The will directed that all fees and inheritance taxes therefrom shall be treated as administrative expenses of the estate, not to be deducted from benefits.

Named trustees of the entire estate were Waldrop, Joseph P. Brooks, of the firm of Brooks and Kupillas, insurance brokers of New York, and Rudolph H. Yeatman, former attorney for the Times-Herald and since deceased. The trustees have broad powers of investment and management.

$25,000 A Year to Daughter

Executors of the estate, who will also fill the function of publishers of the Times-Herald until the newspaper is turned over to the beneficiaries, are Shelton, Waldrop and Brooks. The late Rudolph Yeatman also was originally named in this capacity.

To her daughter, Felicia Gygayka, born of Mrs. Patterson's tempestuous marriage to dashing Polish cavalry officer Count Josef Gygayka, Mrs. Patterson left $25,000 a year for life, her estates in Long Island and North Dakota, and most of her furniture and personal effects.

Mrs. Patterson made no benefit provision for her granddaughter. See HERALD, Page 10, Column 1.

Counter-Move Made End of Troop Segregation Eventual Aim, Truman Says

By Mary Spargo Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday his appointment of an advisory committee on equal treatment in the armed services contemplates an eventual end to segregation in the Nation's military forces.

Even before the Chief Executive made the purpose of his committee clear at a news conference, a Southern legislator had made a countermove. Representative Arthur Winstead (D., Miss.) introduced a bill to allow volunteers to state whether they preferred all-white, all-Negro or mixed units. Officers would be required to carry out the preference.

Mrs. Truman was asked if the reported statement by Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, that the Army would maintain segregation, coincided with the President's program.

Mr. Truman replied that he had not been informed by Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall that Bradley had made no such statement.

(The Associated Press, the United Press, the International News Service and other news-gathering organizations reported from Fort Knox, Ky., Tuesday that Bradley said, "The Army is not out to make any social reforms. The Army will put men of different races in different companies. It will change that policy when the Nation as a whole changes it."

Neither the Army Department nor General Bradley had any comment last night on the President's statement. However, it was said in informed Army quarters that General Bradley's statement, printed Wednesday morning was taken out of context as reported.

The Chief of Staff was at Fort Knox addressing a group of troop commanders in an orientation session on "humanizing" the Army.

From the audience of officers he was asked: "What shall we do about segregated service clubs?"

General Bradley did not know that reporters were present, and it was emphasized he did not know that President Truman, the day before, had issued his order setting

President's Price Rollback Plan Gets Hostile Reception; House Blocks Housing Action

Three-Day Recess Virtually Kills T-E-W Bill Hopes For This Session

By Robert C. Albright Post Reporter

The Senate-passed Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill, No. 2 point in the President's "must" program, was virtually killed off for the session yesterday by a three-day recess of the Republican House.

The recess effectively barred any chance of "discharging" the House Banking and Rules Committee before August 23—first "discharge day"—the bill could be forced up by petition.

Leaders said the "quickie" session will adjourn before that date.

Signatures Total 155

In a House speech, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) appealed to House members, particularly Southern Democrats, to sign the discharge petition regardless of the new deadline. Signatures reached 135 yesterday, just 63 short of the 218 majority required to force a vote.

Mrs. Douglas charged GOP leaders are "deliberately setting the date for adjournment in the fear that we will complete the housing discharge petition," but told newsmen:

"They won't dare adjourn if a majority of the House signs."

Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.), House author of the bill, said it is "inconceivable" Congress will adjourn if the petition is completed.

Walter A. Reuther, UAW-CIO president, in a wire to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York called on the GOP nominee to "ask the Republican leadership to reverse its announced plan to kill the T-E-W bill."

Reuther wired Dewey: "The American people are entitled to an immediate expression of your attitude on this vital issue."

House Republicans meanwhile unanimously approved the GOP leadership statement drafted Tuesday, calling for quick adjournment, and practically saying "No" in advance to long-range housing and other major bills on the President's program.

And the House, in a session devoted almost entirely to partisan recriminations on the special session program, heard Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) charge the measure would increase inflationary pressure without relieving the home shortage.

Following the House Republican conference, Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (Mass.) said Congress should be able to adjourn "by 15 days from now."

Both Martin and House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) stressed that some action of an emergency nature is possible on housing, prices and some other measures.

Martin said there is "a great possibility" the Displaced Persons act may be amended to remove alleged discrimination by permitting admission of DP's who entered American zone camps up to April, 1947.

He put only one other bill on Mr. Truman's urgent list in the green light class—the proposed $5-million-dollar loan for complex.

For His Appeal to Youth Stassen Selected to Head University of Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, July 29 (P).—Harold E. Stassen was chosen president of the University of Pennsylvania today but promptly announced he will "continue a vigorous interest in public questions."

Disclosing nomination of the 41-year-old former Minnesota governor to the Pennsylvania post, the university's board of trustees said he was chosen "above all" for "his inspirational appeal to the youth of America."

Final appointment of Stassen is subject to approval of the university executive board at its meeting in September but this is considered a formality.

Just one month ago at Convention Hall, some two blocks from where the trustees met today, Stassen was defeated in his bid for the Republican nomination for the Presidency of the United States.

Incidentally it was a portion of the Pennsylvania delegates, led by Senator Edward Martin, who made the first break to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and thereby doomed the hopes of Stassen, Senator Robert A. Taft (Ohio) and all other aspirants for the nomination—Editor's note.

He said in a telegram of acceptance to the trustees that he will continue his interest in public questions "particularly those which

Row With Snyder Flares Anew As Eccles Says 'Bust' Is Sure

By John W. Ball Post Reporter

Last winter's row between Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board and Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, in which Eccles was demoted as Reserve Board chairman, broke out anew yesterday.

Eccles told the Senate Banking Committee that the Treasury Department had stifled the Reserve Board's program last November for increases in bank reserves—a plan similar to that now being asked by President Truman. Inflation has gone so far, Eccles said, that a "bust" is certain.

"It's too late," he said, to prevent some degree of depression. "You can only moderate it now."

He explained that he wanted to emphasize the Reserve Board's "continuous" stand in favor of credit controls.

"I don't want the board to be the goat when the bust comes," he said.

"We certainly are going to have a bust. When, I cannot say," Eccles declared. "You've got to

Armed Forces Warn Oil Men To Fill Needs

'Mandatory Action' Threatened Unless Action Is Immediate

The armed forces warned that petroleum industry yesterday it must meet a shortage of military oil and gasoline within a week or face "mandatory action."

Rear Admiral E. D. Foster, director of the military's petroleum purchases, said the services are short 1,700,000 barrels of motor fuel and "slightly behind" on aviation gasoline and diesel oil. It has been impossible, he said, to build up a "fair minimum essential working stock."

Because of the Berlin crisis and other international problems, he said, "nothing short of 100 per cent coverage is acceptable."

Max Ball, head of the Interior Department's gas and oil division, said Foster's threat referred to a draft law provision requiring oil companies to meet military demands and argue prices later.

Industry officials said oil companies would be urged to see that military requirements are filled before nonmilitary needs.

Foster and Maj. Gen. Thomas Larkin, Army Quartermaster General who backed him up, appeared before the National Petroleum Council, an industry group set up to advise the Interior Department on oil problems.

The meeting was called ostensibly to discuss possible ways of avoiding a gasoline shortage late this summer and a heating oil shortage next winter.

Walter Hallahan, council president, reported next winter's fuel oil outlook has "improved considerably" although stocks in the East "are not as high as they should be."

Government officials said the gasoline outlook is "better than we expected" and it might be possible to get through the summer with only a few isolated shortages.

Bills Introduced In Both Houses Also Would Allow Wage, Credit Regulation

By Marshall Andrews Post Reporter

The Truman administration sent to Congress yesterday its apparently hopeless bid for control of runaway prices, wages and credit.

Legislation incorporating the whole program that President Truman advocated in his message to Congress was laid before two congressional committees.

In asking for sweeping powers over the country's economy, the President was plainly opening not only the major battle of the short session but the hottest engagement of the election campaign. His proposals met an outspokenly hostile reception from the Republican majority even before their presentation.

Introduced formally by Senator Barkley (D., Ky.) and Representative Snyder (D., Ky.), the inflation control bill would give the President authority until June 30, 1950, to:

1. Roll back to the level of November, 1947, prices of items important in the cost of living which have risen more than 20 per cent since June, 1946.

2. Establish priorities for any material or facility and allocate any basically affecting production or the cost of living.

3. Exercise control over wages when an employer affected by price ceilings expects to use a prospective wage raise to seek an increase in maximum prices.

4. Restore wartime controls over consumer credit with special attention to installment buying.

5. Regulate directly speculation on commodity exchanges.

6. Regulate bank credits.

7. Exercise inventory control of scarce commodities which affect essential production or the cost of living, with the right to ration these commodities to industry.

Porter Before Committee

Mr. Truman's bill was presented to the House Banking Committee by Paul A. Porter, former OPA administrator and now a temporary White House aide. Committee Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.) dismissed it and Porter's arguments in its behalf with this comment:

"We cannot have price and rationing controls and still have full production. And only through full production can we stabilize our economy."

Prodded by Wolcott to indicate what commodities would first be controlled, Porter gingerly and with considerable indirection suggested that:

1. Meat was the "most conspicuous" commodity "at the high price list."

2. Fluid milk and dairy products were "in difficulty."

3. Clothing, basic nonferrous metals and steel "should be given immediate consideration."

4. Building materials "should come in for consideration."

French Woman Sues Gould Over $400,000 Check

New York, July 29 (P).—A suit on file in Federal Court today charged that Frank Jay Gould, millionaire son of the late railroad magnate, had stopped payment on a $400,000 check he gave a French woman for hiding him from the Nazis.

The suit, filed last yesterday by Mme. Anne Vilbert de Sairigne, member of a prominent French family, asked for a judgment to enforce payment of the check.

Mme. De Sairigne said she sheltered the 70-year-old Gould for about eight months at her villa. She claimed he feared arrest, internment or deportation by the occupying Germans.

She said that on February 20, 1944, Gould gave her a check for $400,000 in appreciation. When she attempted to cash the check in New York, she said, the bank returned the check stamped "payment stopped."

Equipment Rushed to Guard Camp

Shortage of District National Guard uniforms and equipment at their summer training session at Camp Pendleton, Va., was expected to be eased by this morning, officers there reported.

The deficiencies, which brought on an Army investigation and an inspection by Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau of the Department of Defense, was reportedly blamed by General Cramer on heavy enlistments during July.

He was quoted at Camp Pendleton as saying the imperfect preparation which left some 200 District Guardsmen without mess kits and uniforms was not the fault of camp officers.

Equipment Arranged For

His conclusion came after he inspected the camp where some 900 District Guardsmen are training, and conferred with Col. Leroy S. Mann, commander of the Washington contingent, and Col. Charles M. Myers, National Guard instructor.

Colonel Mann said last night he had sent Maj. Raymond O. Watson, group supply officer, to Fort Eustis, Va., to draw two truckloads of equipment, including mess kits, boots, blankets, raincoats and other necessities. These supplies, expected last night, would probably solve most of the local Guard's difficulties, Colonel Mann declared.

Two D. C. Men Hospitalized

Two men from the District group were hospitalized at Fort Monroe, Va., since the encampment began on Sunday, camp officers reported. They were Pvt. Lawrence F. Gunkle, 19, of 3827 Kansas ave. n.w., who was successfully operated on for appendicitis, and Pfc. Fred C. Posey, 18, of 1127 Owens st. n.e., suffering from cellulitis in the finger due to an insect bite.

Representative Hugh D. Scott, Jr. (R., Pa.), the new chairman of the Republican National Committee, was an earlier signer of the petition, it was learned.

In her House speech, Mrs. Douglas appealed to more Southerners to sign the petition, terming it "the one chance" to pass the bill.

"The Republicans are not going to pass any legislation they don't want to pass," she said. "The only thing the Democrats can possibly get for the people of the country is the passage of the long-range housing bill. Everything else is pie in the sky."

Present Action Not Planned
House Banking Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), who opened anti-inflation hearings yesterday, said his committee had no present plans to consider the long range housing bill.

He referred newsmen instead to the limited bill the House passed last session, continuing mortgage guarantees under Title 6 of the old housing law, but omitting public housing and slum clearance.

Thus the petition would have to be signed up this week in order to call up the bill on August 9, the next House "discharge" day. That opportunity passed yesterday when the House recessed over the weekend. Under the rules the petitioners will not get another chance until August 23.

Truman Tries To Hoodwink, Wallace Says

New York, July 29 (U.P.)—Henry A. Wallace said tonight President Truman sought to "hoodwink millions of Americans" in calling a special session of the "talk big-do little Congress."

"The Republicans talk big about ending inflation and building houses. They don't mean it either," Wallace said in a speech over the NBC network.

"The Democrats talk big about ending inflation and building houses. They don't mean it either," Wallace said in a speech over the NBC network.

Berlin Report Sought
During yesterday's second round on the President's message the House meanwhile heard:

Representatives Dirksen and Francis Case (R., S. Dak.) call for more information from the President on the Berlin crisis, and criticize the lack of any reference to it in his message. Case introduced a resolution requesting "full information" from Mr. Truman.

Representative Bartel J. Jonkman (R., Mich.) says the President was asking "the powers of a dictator."

Representative John J. Rooney (D., N. Y.) says that if Republicans "remain subservient to the real estate interests... the only hope is to remember in November."

Representative Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) blames the big manufacturers for inflation. Mansfield introduced a bill providing for a 30-day "cooling-off period" before prices could be increased on certain items. Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) Wednesday introduced a similar bill in the Senate.

Prices Roll By As Roll-Back Is Sought

Prices were still climbing yesterday as the Administration sought to roll back the cost-of-living to last November's level.

Three large makers of cigarettes, American Tobacco Co., R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and Philip Morris, Ltd., announced increases ranging from seven-tenths to eight-tenths of a cent a package.

Retailers said the boost would amount to a 1-cent increase per package to the smoker.

At Washington, the Labor Department said its wholesale price index dropped 0.4 per cent last week, mainly as a result of lower prices for some grains and most livestock.

Average wholesale food prices farm products declined 1.8 per cent during the week. Sizeable price decreases were shown for cows, steers, hogs and sheep, and live poultry. Wheat and cotton prices also went down. But prices for calves, barley and corn went up slightly.

Average wholesale food prices decline .4 per cent for the week, with drops registered for fresh beef, most cured pork, lamb, onions, butter and lard, and raw sugar. Bacon, lemons and oranges, condensed milk and oleo oil went up.

Livestock quotations, however, were rallying from declines last week. Yesterday hogs jumped another 50 cents a hundredweight at Midwest markets, cattle climbed 50 cents generally and sheep rose 25 cents.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices were still 11 per cent above a year ago and only 0.4 per cent below the all-time high point reached two weeks ago.

In another development, the Interstate Commerce Commission announced railroad freight rate adjustments at Washington. The adjustments included both increases and decreases but were calculated to yield railroads an additional $65,200,000 annually.

Approximately 56,000 District men between the ages of 18 and 25 are expected to register for Selective Service here beginning August 30, Frank D. Norton, chief of the D. C. Office of Selective Service Records revealed yesterday.

A "large number" of men who work here but claim residence elsewhere also are expected to register, he said. Their registration cards will be forwarded to Selective Service directors in the States where they claim residence.

His statement followed a Commissioners' proclamation setting registration dates here to coincide with those ordered for the Nation by the President July 20.

Time Off Urged
The Commissioners urged "all employers to give those under their charge sufficient time off in which to fulfill the obligation of registration incumbent upon them." They also urged all men subject to registration to familiarize themselves with "the rules and regulations governing registration and to comply therewith."

North said places for registration will be announced probably "within the next 10 days."

Hours Announced
Registration will be held between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. on the following days:
Monday, August 30 (men born after Aug. 30, 1922).
Tuesday, August 31, or Wednesday, September 1 (men born in 1923).
Wednesday, September 2, or Friday, September 3 (men born in 1924).
Thursday, September 4, or Saturday, September 5 (men born in 1925).
Friday, September 6, or Sunday, September 7 (men born in 1926).
Saturday, September 8, or Monday, September 9 (men born in 1927).

Institutions Get 2 Meatless Days

Buyers' resistance to meat prices spread to the District Government yesterday.

Two meatless days a week for District institutions were decreed by District Commissioners because of high meat costs.

The action was taken on recommendation of Roland M. Brennan, purchasing officer, who in substance said institutions with fixed budgets were being priced out of the market.

Meatless days will not affect persons for whom doctors have prescribed diets including meat, Brennan said, and heads of institutions will decide which days are to be meatless.

Supplemental poultry and fish contracts will be awarded immediately, Brennan said, so that the institutions may have additional quantities of these foods to offset the lack of meat.

Meanwhile, an A. & P. price reduction in Baltimore and Washington in beef and lamb was announced by Tom Kelly, sales manager for the chain in the two cities.

Price cuts in lamb, he said, are as follows: Leg of lamb, 69 from 73 cents per pound; loin chops, 99 cents from $1.10; rib chops, 85 from 95 cents; square cut (roast), 63 from 69 cents.

In beef: Porterhouse and T-bone steaks, 99 cents from $1.10; sirloin, 93 from 99 cents. Chuck roast has already been reduced from 73 to 65 cents a pound, Kelly said.

Price cuts also have been announced by some other retailers, attributed to consumer resistance.

In Silver Spring, Md., Charles H. Kopelman, executive secretary of the board of trade, said the organization's 92 merchant members had declared "a buyers' strike" against high prices and would sell "many items" below cost during Silver Spring Week, Saturday through August 7.

President's Price Rollback Plan Gets Hostile Reception

testimony on credit controls after a preliminary political skirmish for tactical advantage, Chairman Tobey (R., N. H.) said he had invited Federal Reserve Board Chairman Thomas B. McCabe to testify yesterday and, when McCabe replied he wasn't prepared, invited Treasury Secretary Snyder, who also wasn't ready. Then, when he got an acceptance from former Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, McCabe was ready to talk, Tobey said.

Not only was McCabe ready, but got top billing and testified before Eccles. McCabe urged enactment of the control legislation, which Eccles termed "too late."

During questioning of Porter by the House Committee, Wolcott insisted that Mr. Truman already had authority to control credits under the act which repealed his wartime control authority.

"The President and the Federal Reserve Board," he declared, "could plunge the country into a depression or anything short of a depression under their present powers without legislation."

"The President was specifically given power to restore credit controls if he declares an emergency. The President can at this moment declare an economic or any kind of emergency under the law."

President Differs

Asked about this at his afternoon news conference, Mr. Truman said flatly he could not re-establish credit controls since authority to do so had been repealed. When reporters quoted Wolcott and said he had read from the act itself to support his contention, the President said he thought the Michigan Republican was mistaken.

He insisted that authority from Congress was required for the Reserve Board to reinstate credit controls. But he added that he would have the Attorney General go into the question for him.

In reply to another question, Mr. Truman said Secretary Snyder had delayed his appearance before the Senate Banking Committee because he felt it proper for the Living Costs Increase 4.1 Per Cent

Living costs, measured by the Bureau of Labor statistics, advanced 4.1 per cent between November, 1947, and mid-June, 1948.

President Truman, through Paul A. Porter, asked Congress today for authority to roll back prices of essential cost of living items. He proposed the level of November, 1947, be used, with consideration given to changes in profits, costs, speculative fluctuations and other factors since then.

Thus the rollback wouldn't necessarily equal the exact percentage of increase in living costs shown by the bureau's figures. These figures show that while the cost of living advanced only 4.1 per cent between November, 1947, and mid-June, 1948, food prices advanced 5.6 per cent.

Actually the sharpest increases in the living costs occurred before November, 1947.

Between June, 1946, when wartime price controls ended and November, 1947, living costs advanced 23.7 per cent. In that period food prices advanced 39.2 per cent.

The consumers' price index issued monthly by the Bureau of Labor statistics stood at 171.7 on June 15 this year. This is the last figure available and is a record high.

The index in November, 1947, stood at 164.9.

The index measures living costs for moderate income families in the larger cities. It covers such items as food, apparel, rent, fuel and electricity, and house furnishings.

The years 1925-29 equal 100 in the index. Here are some index comparisons for November, 1947, and mid-June, 1948:

	November 1947	June 1948
All items	164.9	171.7
All foods	202.7	214.1
Apparel	190.2	198.9
Rent	113.2	117.0
Fuel, electricity, etc.	126.9	132.6
House furnishings	188.9	194.8
Miscellaneous	143.0	147.5

duce, so far as is possible at this late date, the threat of future collapse.

"There is no point," said Porter, "in attempting to assess the blame for what has happened or is happening to prices. I, for one, do not believe that such an assessment is possible."

"There is loose talk about profiteering by business or greediness on the part of labor and farmers. But despite some unfortunate monopolistic elements which exist, prices are still established through out most of our economy in greater or less degree in the market place, by the interaction of supply and demand."

"The blame can be laid only at the door of a Government which miscalculates its responsibilities and neglects to provide measures to protect the system from temporary and abnormal pressures carried over from the war. We propose, even at this late date, that this neglect be remedied."

Porter will resume his testimony at 10 a. m. today.

Row With Snyder Flares Anew As Eccles Says 'Bust' Is Sure

(R., N. H.) asked Eccles what Tobey termed "the $64 question."

"Where should the American people place the responsibility for not getting credit controls asked for last fall?"

Eccles then explained that Clark Clifford, White House legal adviser, asked him to draft a plan for credit controls and curbs on bank lending powers to be included in Mr. Truman's message to the special session last November.

"To our great surprise," he said, "when the message came forth the statement was deleted. We found out the deletion was due to the Treasury."

Eccles then added that "in due respect to Mr. Snyder," he didn't want to imply that the plan would have been passed by Congress, even if Snyder had approved it, and it had been asked by Mr. Truman.

The plan, he said, "also had formidable opposition from the banking fraternity."

"The Eccles plan called for special reserves to be set up by members banks of the Federal Reserve System in addition to the regular reserves called for in the law. Similar special reserves are being sought by the Administration now."

Chairman Tobey revealed that the committee had difficulty in getting Administration spokesmen to appear yesterday. McCabe had told him, Tobey said, that he was not ready to appear, and Snyder had explained that he didn't wish to until McCabe had testified.

When they learned that Eccles was to testify, it was suddenly decided that McCabe could appear yesterday.

McCabe urged the increasing of bank reserves against both time and demand deposits, similar to what Eccles had asked last November.

He said the increased reserve requirements would apply only to banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System (about half the Nation's banks).

McCabe also suggested that an increase in the Federal Reserve's rediscount rate might be helpful, along with "a rise in short-term interest rates" paid by the Government on its securities to "attract funds from other uses to investment."

McCabe emphasized, however, that "action in the credit field alone will not solve the inflation problem."

He tried to avoid direct questions of GOP committee members on his attitude toward the Administration's other proposals, such as price controls, on the ground that they were "outside my field."

But he finally replied that "price controls should be a last resort."

Jenner Demands Investigation of Meat Policies

By The Associated Press

Senator Jenner (R., Ind.) called yesterday for a senatorial investigation of the Agriculture Department's handling of meat production.

"Such an investigation would reveal to the American housewife how the President is playing cheap politics with the prices she pays for meat," Jenner shouted to his colleagues.

The Indiana Senator charged that the Agriculture Department had recommended a reduction in beef cattle breeding herds this year of 500,000 head.

"Slaughtered breeding cows do not produce calves," Jenner declared, and added:

"The inevitable result of the department's latest folly will be fewer cattle next year, an even more critical beef shortage and almost certainly still higher prices."

He said the department had urged farmers to produce fewer pigs in 1948 than in 1947. He said Agriculture Department figures show hen and egg production was cut.

President Silent On European Crisis

President Truman declined flatly yesterday to comment on any European developments.

He was asked at his news conference about British Foreign Secretary Bevin's statement that efforts are being made to determine more whether the cold war can be ended by negotiations.

The President replied finally and flatly that he had no comment on that or on the European situation.

Health Assembly Backers Organize

A continuing effort to carry out the recommendations of the National Health Assembly was assured yesterday with organization of a permanent voluntary group.

Oscar R. Ewing, Federal security administrator, announced yesterday that the NHA steering committee had decided to continue on a permanent, voluntary basis.

The committee will follow up the work of the assembly, held here last May, by bringing together the widest possible range of professional and consumer groups in the health field.

Most noteworthy achievement of the National Health Assembly was the degree of cooperation obtained between professional and consumer groups.

The executive committee of the National Health Assembly was so pleased with progress made at the May session that Ewing was asked to form a permanent steering committee.

Members are: Nelson Cruikshank, director of insurance activities, AFL; Graham L. Davis, president, American Hospital Association; Miss Katherine Densford, president, American Nurses Association; Dr. Vlado A. Getting, commissioner of Public Health, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Mary Lasker, New York; Dr. George F. Lull, secretary and general manager, American Medical Association; Mrs. Eugene Meyer, and Jerry Voorhis, general secretary, Cooperative League of U.S.A.

The objectives of the steering committee include:

Making plans and stimulating activities to meet national, State, and community health needs; encouraging local initiative, interest, support, and participation of the entire community in assessing their own health needs, and in developing their own programs for action; cooperating with both Government and nongovernment organizations on national, State, and local levels; and stimulating regional, State, and local health conferences, with the broadest possible representation and support of both lay and professional groups.

"This kind of voluntary organization," Ewing said, "is a prime essential in meeting the Nation's critical health needs. The Federal Security Agency and other Gov-

Mrs. Macauley Head of GOP Women's Unit Reappointed

Republican National Chairman Hugh Scott, jr., yesterday announced reappointment of Mrs. Robert W. Macauley, a native of Madison, Iowa, as a permanent chairman in charge of the GOP National Committee.

Mrs. Macauley has organized conferences of GOP women in Boston, Charleston, W. Va., St. Paul, Salt Lake City, Davenport, Iowa, Boise, Idaho, and Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Charles P. Howard, Reading, Mass., new secretary of the Republican National Committee, held a conference with Herbert Brownell, jr., the party campaign manager. She said women voters "like the efficiency of Governors Dewey and Warren" and "are preparing to vote for a new look in Washington beginning next January."

Government agencies will give their fullest cooperation. But health is, first and last, the people's business. It is so important and so complex that it demands all the teamwork we can put into it. I regard the decision to continue the voluntary cooperation spark-plugged by the National Health Assembly as one of the most encouraging developments we could have hoped for."

Armed Force Plan Told

up a board in the Armed Services to provide equal treatment and equal opportunity for men in the services.

Army officials were loath last night to make any forecast of what action might now be taken.

Friends of the Chief of Staff declared that he has no racial prejudice and that while he was head of the Veterans Administration he took many steps to avoid unnecessary segregation.

These friends said that General Bradley, as a soldier, would obey presidential orders as a matter of course.

However, among other officers there was some questioning of the full meaning of Mr. Truman's assertion in favor of eventual segregation in the armed services.

A reported asked Mr. Truman if his executive order on Monday establishing the advisory committee on "equal treatment and equal opportunity" in the armed forces envisioned the end of all segregation.

The President responded with a flat yes.

In Congress, Southern Democrats, already alienated from Mr. Truman, grimly noted his statement, and started figuring what they could do to block his program.

Senator Tom Stewart (D., Tenn.) said he supposed the Southern group would unite behind a drive to pass legislation allowing men in the services to choose whether they would or would not serve in mixed units. He recalled that such a provision has been offered as an amendment to draft legislation by Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) and predicted that others beside Southerners would support it.

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) said the President's move would "seriously impair the morale of the Army at a time when our armed forces should be at their strongest and most efficient. Such an action is most unfortunate," he declared.

Several Southern Senators said they endorsed the position that segregation should be continued in the armed forces until the Nation as a whole is ready to accept nonsegregation.

Must Be Gradual

Some added that they believed the time would not be long before nonsegregation would be easily accepted but they insisted it must be adopted gradually.

They united in charging the President with playing politics on an issue which might have serious effect upon this Nation and its foreign policy.

Mr. Truman's order Monday establishing the advisory committee on equal treatment and opportunity decreed that the equality policy should be put into effect "as rapidly as possible."

He gave the committee strong powers, wide in scope, to summon witnesses from both the armed services and Government departments, and compel the production of documents.

Poll Tax Bill Sets Off Talk

and sleepy chamber with a loud demand for recognition.

Apparently Hill had feared some surprise move to catch the Southerners unaware and quash the filibuster.

When Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) nodded recognition, Hill dropped his voice several octaves and said he merely wanted to put a speech in the Congressional Record.

"I thought the place was on fire," quipped Vandenberg.

Stennis Leads Talkathon

Smiling, Hill apologized profusely for "alarming the chair" and obtained permission to place in the Record the speech he made at the Democratic National Convention nominating Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) as the South's protest candidate for the Presidency.

The filibuster-by-gentleman's agreement was on again.

The Southern talkathon was led by Senator John S. Stennis (D., Miss.). Successor to the late Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Stennis, as much of a contrast to the vituperative, fire-eating Bilbo as it is possible to imagine.

A Phi Beta Kappa and former judge, Stennis based his entire argument upon constitutional issues.

Senate passage of the House-approved bill, Stennis declared, would "set a precedent whereby a mere majority of the Congress can prescribe qualifications of the voters that are to elect the members of Congress."

Wants People to Decide

He urged that this power should rest with the people.

"Let the people pass a constitutional amendment (barring the poll tax) if they wish," he said, "but above all else, let us preserve the Constitution as it is now written and also preserve it later as it may be amended."

At the President's press conference yesterday a reporter asked: "Do you think that the Senate has acted in good faith in starting its work on the civil rights controversy?"

At first Mr. Truman said he had no comment. Then he added that the Senate stands before the country—in the November election—just as he does. The Senators, he stated, will have to take the consequences of their own actions.

Senate Gets Nearly 2 Dozen Nominations From President

President Truman yesterday sent nearly two dozen nominations to the Senate in the face of a decision by the Republican leadership not to consider any appointments at the extra session.

Most of the nominations were reappointments of United States attorneys and marshals. The President, however, also nominated:

George Wadsworth of New York

now Ambassador to Iraq, to be Ambassador to Turkey, and Edward R. Dudley of New York to be Minister to Liberia.

Among the reappointments was that of Ernest Gruening of New York as Governor of Alaska.

Dudley, nominated as Minister to Liberia, is a former assistant attorney general of New York State. A member of the legal staff of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, he lives at 2190 Madison ave., New York City. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Dudley, live in Roanoke, Va. He served from 1945 to 1947 as counsel to the government of the Virgin Islands.

London, July 29 (AP)—Nine men, armed with crowbars and clubs, fought a pitched battle with London airport police today in a daring but futile attempt to rob the airport gold bullion warehouse. All nine were captured.

Scotland Yard officers were waiting when the gang drove up in a black truck. Nine policemen were injured.

The British Press Association said it is understood the warehouse contained about 20 million dollars worth of diamonds and about 8 million worth of gold.

Montgomery To Air School Complaints

Montgomery County parents protesting the quality of instruction in the county schools will air their complaints at a series of Parent-Teacher conferences beginning next week.

A Bethesda parent group which claims too much emphasis is placed on social studies and athletics will participate.

The conferences, to be held at Richard Montgomery High School in Rockville, are part of an annual "work shop" which this year will study possible curriculum revisions.

The opening conference will be held at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday in the school library. Parents unable to attend the Tuesday session may attend a similar conference set at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

Other conferences between teachers and parents are scheduled August 12 and 13, at 1:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. respectively and August 24 and 25, at 1:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. respectively.

Sales Tax Nets Md. 23.6 Million In 11 Months

The Maryland sales tax, estimated to raise $18,400,000 annually, brought $23,635,242.97 into the State's treasury during its first 11 months of operation, the State Comptroller's office announced yesterday.

Montgomery County contributed $928,942.96; Prince Georges, $662,325.08; and Frederick County, $362,520.95, the comptroller's office said.

The sales tax, voted by the 1947 Maryland Legislature, went into effect last August 15.

Poland Again Protests U. S. Policy in Germany

Poland filed a new protest yesterday against United States policies for dealing with western Germany.

The Polish Ambassador, Joseph Winiewicz, delivered a formal note to Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett at the State Department in a brief conference.

An embassy official said that Poland in the protest noted "with satisfaction" the United States assurances that the products of a revived western Germany would be used for the recovery of all Europe and that the United States is promoting the revival of trade between eastern and western Europe. But Poland expressed belief that United States policies are not carrying out these principles and contended that Poland's own vital interests are being neglected.

GOP Primary Is New Twist in Virginia

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

Something new is being added to Virginia politics this summer—a Republican primary August 3 in northern Virginia's Eighth Congressional District.

It is believed the first time in history that Virginia Republicans have selected their candidates in a primary.

Heretofore, Republicans named their candidate for the general election in convention, leaving the primaries to the Democrats. And often enough, Republicans have put up no candidate at all, particularly in local contests.

Both candidates for the GOP congressional nomination—Tyrell Krum of Vienna and Charles O. Pratt of Arlington—view the new primary method as a way to build up a strong two-party system in the State, supplying the Democrats with opposition.

Officials Caught Off Guard

Local election officials, caught unawares by the Republican maneuver, rushed to the Attorney General for advice on the procedure of conducting two primaries side by side. The Democratic primary also will be held August 3.

In the Democratic primary, Congressman Howard W. Smith of Alexandria is opposed by Arthur F. Souther of Arlington. Smith has been in Congress since 1930. Souther bounced into the political arena by accident two months ago when he got angry at the way local Democrats ran their business.

Here are thumbnail biographies of the principal figures in the two primaries:

Howard W. Smith, 65, 204 W. Walnut st., Alexandria, has served in Congress continuously for 18 years. He has represented the Eighth District the entire time except in 1933-34 when he was elected at large.

Born in Broad Run, Va., he took a law degree at the University of Virginia in 1903 and practiced law in Alexandria until he was appointed judge of the Alexandria Corporation Court in 1922. For the four years previous to that, he had been Commonwealth's Attorney of the city, a job his son now holds. In 1928, Smith became judge of the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit of Virginia, stepping down in 1930 to run for Congress.

Smith is president of the Alexandria National Bank and owner of four dairy farms. He is a Mason, Elk and Odd Fellow.

During New Deal days, Smith opposed the National Labor Relations Act and the Wagner and Hours Act and was on Franklin Roosevelt's 1938 purge list. In the Eightieth Congress, Smith voted for: Foreign aid funds, selective service, aid to Greece and Turkey, restoration of cuts in farm funds and the Taft-Hartley Act. He opposed tax reduction both years, antipoll tax bill, renewal of trade agreements (for one year only). He voted for rent control in 1948, but opposed it in 1947.

Arthur F. Souther, 30, 1220 N. Quinn st., Arlington, was born in Richmond, but has lived in Arlington 12 years.

He worked with The Jeffersonian, "national Democratic magazine before the war, was a tank commander during the war and is now president of a small exporting firm.

Souther entered the race because he didn't like the way the Arlington Democratic organization went about naming delegates to the State Democratic convention. He wanted to be a delegate, but balked at signing a pledge to support the candidate of the State convention.

He attacked Arlington's method of naming delegates, charging it excluded Government workers and violated party regulations. He appealed all the way to the State convention where his appeal died in the convention's resolutions committee.

"Government by the people, rather than by politicians" is the slogan of Souther's campaign. He says he stands for Federal aid to education, housing, health, agriculture, recreation, support the United Nations, a national defense program along the lines of ROTC which would not take young men from the community.

Tyrell Krum, 48, Vienna, Va., is making his first bid for public office in the Republican primary. Journalist and radio commentator, Krum served in both world wars. He also holds a law degree.

He was a marine in the first World War and a Navy lieutenant commander in the second. Krum led the fight for approval of the primary plan at the district convention.

Strengthening the two-party system in the State is a prime objective of his, he says.

"One of my aims when I get to Congress," said Krum, "is to make sure that the vast field of veterans' affairs is shaped up as it should be. I am also going to devote my efforts to reducing national income taxes and to seeing that Government workers are properly paid and their interests protected. I shall fight for a speedy and sound settlement of the critical housing shortage. . . . And lend my efforts to do something about Virginia's school system."

Charles O. Pratt, 43, 2812 N. 1st st., Arlington lawyer and former Government employe, has lived in Arlington 13 years.

He has worked as an FBI agent, legal advisor to Nelson E. Rockefeller, coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, in the Department of Agriculture and for the Board of Economic Warfare. He is now practicing law in Arlington and Washington.

Last year Pratt headed the Greater Arlington Association in its fight against an elected school board and a 10-million-dollar bond issue for school building and other improvements. He later endorsed the direct election of school board members. He was defeated last November as Republican candidate for county trial justice.

Pratt is a member of United Nations League of Lawyers, Foreign Trade Council, Henry Clay Parent-Teacher Association and Rotary. A native of New York, he holds a master of laws degree from Georgetown University.

Said Pratt: "I am in this campaign to strengthen the two-party system in this District. This is not an ordinary campaign. It is a crusade to clean up politics in this District and to give the people of the District—all of them—adequate representation."

Answers on U. N.
The League of Women Voters asked four questions of all congressional candidates in Virginia. Following are the substance of the answers given by the Eighth District candidates:

1. What do you consider the most effective ways of strengthening the United Nations?

Smith: Give it an international police force, whose function would be limited to enforcing its orders against aggressors. Continue efforts to bring about mutual understanding among nations desiring peace.

Souther: Elimination of unrestricted veto; creation of world police force; international inspection of armaments and control of atomic energy; providing U. N. with independent source of income and authorizing World Court to interpret its charter.

Krum: Strong military police force; curtail throttling use of veto power. Russia should be "stripped of right to defeat the ends of justice."

Pratt: Veto power must be surrendered as inconsistent with functions of U. N. and its ultimate goal. This must be accomplished slowly by evolutionary steps.

On Nation's Economy
2. What Government action should be taken to encourage a healthy domestic economy?

Smith: Balance budget and gradually reduce national debt; firm measures to control and halt inflation; resist hoard of minority pressure groups making demands on public purse.

Souther: Balance budget and begin to reduce debt; raise minimum wage floor, thus increasing purchasing power. This in turn will increase production costs in volume industries and check price increases.

Krum: Remove Federal Government from its "domination and regimentation of the American people." Revert to policy of "free enterprise and free conduct of our lives within bounds of propriety."

Pratt: Put taxes and spending on common-sense level to remove stifling effect of tremendous tax burden on the economy; development of housing program, carried out by private business where adequate, but relying on Government where necessary; minimum Government regulation of business; appointment of highly qualified

Women Voters Hear Talks by 7 Candidates

Seven candidates for national and local offices in Tuesday's Eighth Virginia District primaries yesterday addressed Arlington's Organized Women Voters at the Little Tea House, 1301 S. Arlington Ridge rd.

They included James P. Hart, Jr., of Roanoke, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, and Arthur F. Souther, seeking the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives against incumbent Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

Other speakers were the two Republican primary contenders for nomination for the House, Tyrell Krum and Charles O. Pratt, and three Democratic candidates for the one Arlington County Board post, incumbent Alfred E. Friable, Attorney Harold Scholz, and insurance man William Nemeth.

PRIMARY—From P. 6

GOP Primary Is New Twist

Legal men, not politicians, to Federal judgeships.

3. What is your attitude toward the progressive reduction of trade barriers by the United States?

Smith: Favor continuation of Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for three-year period without change; oppose bill just passed by Congress continuing act for one year with crippling amendments; continue policy of lowering trade barriers through reciprocal agreements, bearing in mind some small nations cannot lower tariff walls without destroying home industry.

Krum: Favor a substantial measure of protection through trade barriers. "We can never hope to compete with low standards of working conditions in many foreign countries and we certainly shouldn't try. We must protect the income and working conditions of the American people."

Pratt: Favor reduction of trade barriers consistent with reciprocal action by other nations.

4. What do you consider the most important issues facing the country which call for congressional action?

Smith: Those discussed above plus adequate military preparedness.

Souther: Support of ERP, European union and non-Communist China; national defense; protect minority rights; find workable method to adjust labor-management difficulties; Federal aid in fields of education, health, combating juvenile delinquency; extend Social Security program; home rule for the District of Columbia; equitable payment of Federal workers.

Krum: Substantial housing bill, putting job in hands of private industry; cut back spending and taxes; fight to reduce high cost of living.

Pratt: Adequate defense program without draining economy; reduce taxes and spending; adequate housing; strengthen U. N.; enforcement of lawful orders of international agencies.

Gangster Buried In Peoria With Prohibition Pomp

Peoria, Ill., July 29 (U.P.)—Bernie Shelton, second of the gangster Shelton brothers to die with his boots on, was buried today with all the pomp of a prohibition-era gang funeral.

Shelton was slain by an unknown assassin Monday, more than 20 years after he and his brother, Carl, terrorized southern Illinois in wars on rival bootleggers with tanks, armored cars and even airplanes.

His funeral was lavish. Some 100 relatives of the Shelton clan, former henchmen and curiosity seekers gathered at the graveside. A crowd of 250 attended the funeral services.

Three truckloads of flowers surrounded the grave. Several large floral displays were inscribed "our pal" and "our partner."

Bernie's body was encased in a $3000 bronze casket.

Crewmen Believed Overcome Before Crash

New York, July 29 (U.P.)—The possibility that the pilot and copilot of a United Airlines DC-4 were almost unconscious when it crashed near Mount Carmel, Pa., June 17, killing all 43 persons aboard, was reported today.

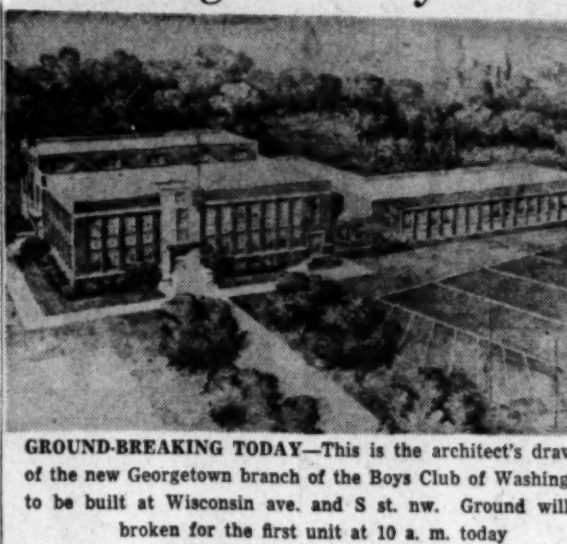

The New York Times said Government and aircraft investigators believe the pilots may have been attempting to extinguish a fire—possibly nonexistent—and were overcome by carbon dioxide fumes seeping from the mechanical fire-fighting equipment.

CARE Packages Drop Over Half

With the advent of the Economic Cooperation Administration, CARE packages to Europe nose-dived from 350,000 last January to 150,000 in June. This was disclosed by Paul Comilly French, executive director of CARE, at a press luncheon yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel.

Stressing the need for the continuation of CARE parcels, French declared, "ECA won't solve the immediate problem of the little people of Europe."

French said he thought many Americans believed that ECA solved the food problem, hence they had discontinued CARE parcels.

C. Tyler Wood, assistant to the deputy administrator of ECA, outlined the purpose of the ECA program. He said ECA seeks the partnership of individual Americans in the great undertaking of European recovery; that the American voluntary agencies engaged in relief work can supply the personal touch as contrasted with the necessarily impersonal character of government programs.

Diver's Find May Be U. S. Gold Carrier

Darwin, Australia, July 29 (U.P.)—A mystery ship lying on the bottom of Darwin harbor may be the missing United States destroyer Peary and there may be $3,230,000 worth of gold aboard her.

No one knows for sure yet, and Australian and American officials have not commented. But there was widespread belief here that it was the Peary that an Australian diver bumped into in the murky depths of the eastern arm of the harbor earlier this week.

The Peary was riding in Darwin Harbor when Japanese bombers came over February 19, 1942. After from an apparent hit, the destroyer was steaming out of the harbor with all guns going when her main magazines blew up. No trace of the ship or her 80 officers and crew members has been found since.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PREPARING VEAL

VEAL STEW

With Celery and Noodles

1 1/2 lb. salt pork 2 cups water
2 lb. veal breast 1/2 cup salt
1 neck or shoulder 2 cups cut celery
2 tablespoons flour

Cut salt pork in cubes and fry until brown, add veal breast, neck or shoulder, cut in 2-inch cubes, and brown well. Add water, salt, and cover closely. Let simmer 1 1/2 hours. Add cut celery and continue cooking 1/2 hour. Thicken the gravy with flour stirred into a little water. Serve with cooked noodles. Garnish with pickle fans. Serves 5 or 6.

Spicy Veal Pot Roast

Choose 5-lb. shoulder of veal, bone left in. Mix 1 tablespoon of dry mustard, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1 tablespoon salt and some pepper together and rub into the roast. Brown the roast very slowly in 3 tablespoons of lard—the more slowly browned, the better the flavor. Add 1/2 cup diced onion, 2 tablespoons vinegar and cover tightly. Simmer over a low fire for 2 1/2 hours. Makes its own gravy. Serves 3 to the pound of meat.

To 7 Executives

Ellen Pearson Arnold, born to vigorous anti-vivisectionist, directed they be put to death painlessly.

Her ranches in Teton County, Wyoming, and other real estate there, with all its furnishings, she gave to a niece, Mrs. Josephine Patterson Reeve Albright.

Other individual bequests: Margaret Barney, her secretary, $10,000; Jerry LeFort, son of Henry LeFort, Mrs. Patterson's chauffeur, $5000; Mrs. Rose Crabtree, a friend of Jackson, Wyo., $3000; and $1000 each to Mrs. Sibilla Campbell and two brothers, Joseph and Emmet Miller, all of Washington, employees.

C. B. Porter also would have received $5000 if he had been in Mrs. Patterson's employ at the time of her death, her attorney said.

A large portion of the estate consists of one-fourth interest in the McCormick-Patterson Trust, which holds a controlling share of stock in the Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News, attorneys said.

This interest, and the balance of the estate, is to be placed in a trust fund, from which the $25,000 a year benefits will be paid to daughter Felicia in "convenient installments."

Net income above that, from the trust fund, is to be distributed to charities. Upon Felicia's death, if the McCormick-Patterson Trust no longer exists, the balance of the trust goes to charity.

Otherwise, the funds will remain in the special trust until 20 years after the death of Col. Robert R. McCormick, cousin of Mrs. Patterson and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, or upon disposal by the McCormick-Patterson Trust of its stock in the Tribune Co., whichever is earlier.

Charities specifically mentioned are The Cradle Society of Evanston, Ill., The Spence Chapin Adoption Service of New York, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society of Chicago, the Florence Crittenton Anchorage, at Chicago, and certain other strictly charity groups which the trustees design.

publication yesterday, Lewis G. Caldwell of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin and Ellis, said the total estate "is around 15 million dollars; it may be more . . . we haven't even opened the safe deposit boxes yet."

Later he said the 15 million dollars was a "minimum" figure. Asked for an estimate of the Times-Herald value, Waldrop said, "I couldn't give you any valuation. Mrs. Patterson laughed off several offers for it . . . it's not for sale, now."

Queried as to the newspaper's future policy, Waldrop said: "Everything is running smoothly and in high gear . . . I wouldn't undertake to say we can run the paper the way she would want us to—but we will try. We've always been an independent newspaper, we'll try to stay that way. We really haven't gotten down to any operating procedure yet."

Papers for probating the will and appointing the executors probably will be filed early next week. Waldrop said he did not yet know whether he and Brooks will appoint a third trustee to replace Yeatman.

The executors of the estate are to distribute the newspaper property to the seven executives within three years, with the recommendation that a corporation be formed to operate the newspaper.

Until that disposition, the executors will operate the newspaper, and delegate to the named executives whatever authority the executors desire, including fixing salaries and hiring and firing.

If any of the newspaper beneficiaries dies before the newspaper is distributed, his share passes to his own beneficiaries.

The will specifically states that any operating losses will be paid out of the newspaper bequest, not from the general estate.

Mrs. Ann Bowie Smith, who received the Dower House under the will, lives at Melwood Farm, Cemetery, Chicago, after brief about 4 miles away. She said she became acquainted with Mrs. Patterson when the latter established a residence there about 16 years ago.

The will specifies that in event Mrs. Smith dies before she is paid her $25,000 bequest, that sum shall be paid over a five-year period to Mrs. Smith's 5-year-old son, Richard Bennett Darnall Smith, who with the youngest 9 months old, white-pillared Dower House.

by NUCOA'S "Bowl Mix"

BECAUSE it protects the fine flavor and texture that make Nucoa our favorite margarine!
You're right, ladies! We tolerate no short-cuts on quality in the making of Nucoa, so why should you tolerate them in coloring Nucoa for your table? Nucoa is churned, chilled, made into pounds, and luxuriously triple-wrapped, so that it comes to you with the finest churn-fresh flavor, the smoothest churn-fresh texture any spread can have. It is not melted and poured into any trick coloring package, because we know you would not like the flavor and texture of delicious Nucoa impaired in this way.

BECAUSE we find it as quick as any way—and so much more appetizing!
Yes, ladies! Just let Nucoa stand at room temperature until it is soft—not soupy, but soft enough for quick sandwich spreading. Then remove it from the package to a large bowl and with a large fork or spoon cream in the coloring shaken from the pure color wafer. It takes less than a minute and a half to mix the color in evenly—and no other method is quicker than this; no other method so well protects the texture!

BECAUSE we get the best margarine this way—at less cost!
Right again! If you buy margarine in a trick coloring package, you pay extra for the package. When you buy Nucoa, you buy its finer flavor, its year-round churn-fresh goodness, its rich food energy and dependable Vitamin A. Seven Employees Inheriting Times-Herald Are Veterans in Their Respective Fields

To receive the paper, and the property in which it is published, share and share alike under the terms of the will of the late Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, owner-editor-publisher, are: William C. Shelton, Frank C. Waldrop, Edmund F. Jewell, Michael W. Flynn, H. A. Robinson, J. Irving Belt and Mason S. Peters 3d.

Shelton, 55, general manager, was also named an executor of the will. A lifelong Washington resident, he was a newsboy at the age of 10 years, a Washington Post delivery boy at 11, and circulation manager of The Washington Post at 19. In 1922 he went to the Washington Times and Herald as circulation director and in 1936 became business manager of the two papers.

Native of Alabama, Waldrop, 42, editor-in-chief, also named an executor, was born in Veto, Ala. He attended the United States Military Academy at West Point, Columbia University, and Andrew Jackson Law School at Nashville, Tenn. He started as a reporter on the Nashville Tennessean in 1928, and was later managing editor. He joined the Washington Herald staff in 1933 and has served in various reportorial and editorial capacities.

Jewell, 52, advertising director, was born in Danville, Ill. He attended Huntington Preparatory School, Second Naval District Training School and Boston University. In 1922 he became an advertising salesman for the Manchester (N. H.) Union. Seven years later he came to Washington as advertising director of the Times and Herald. In 1931-32 he was general manager of the Washington Times Co. He then returned to Manchester as part-owner and assistant treasurer of the Union-Leader and rose to publisher. He served in the Navy during World War II and was promoted to the rank of captain.

City Editor at 22 Flynn, 59, supervising managing editor, a native Washingtonian, attended St. John's College here and was graduated from Rock Hill College, Ellicott City, Md. He went to work for the Washington Herald when 20 years old, became city editor two years later, and has been with the paper ever since. During World War I he was commissioned a second lieutenant.

Robinson, 59, circulation director, was born in Russia and came to the United States when 8 months old. When 15 years old he went to work in the Boston Traveler circulation department. When 18 he joined the Boston American staff as a foreman, shortly became city circulation and circulation efficiency expert for the Hearst chain. He came to Washington in 1931 when Mrs. Patterson took over the Herald.

Joined Times in 1900 Belt, 64, mechanical superintendent, was born in Greenmount, Md., and came to Washington in childhood. He joined the Washington Times staff in 1900, served as a reporter for a time, then switched to the printing side, eventually becoming composing room foreman. When Mrs. Patterson took over the Times and Herald he was named mechanical superintendent.

Peters, 33, night managing editor, was born in Chicago, and educated in European and American private schools. He joined the Washington Herald as a cub reporter in 1932. He served successively as a rewrite man, drama critic, picture editor, Sunday editor, assistant city editor, city editor and managing editor. He was commissioned an ensign in the Naval Reserve at the outbreak of World War II, served in a number of the Pacific campaigns, was decorated and held the rank of lieutenant when released from active duty in December, 1945.

Soviet Demands U. N. Framework For Europe Aid

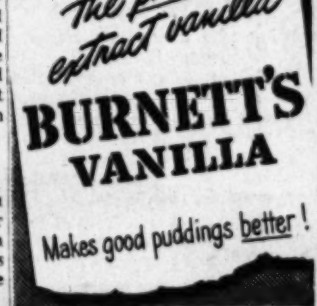

Geneva, Switzerland, July 29 (AP).—A Soviet proposal that all aid to Europe be granted within the framework of the United Nations was voted down today by the U. N. Economic and Social Council.

Russian Delegate A. A. Arutunian criticized the Marshall Plan, then said the Soviet Union is willing to go "half way" in settling differences on the economic rehabilitation of Europe.

"The Soviet Union believes the concerted action of nations, which was so useful during hostilities, should be continued, especially as regards rehabilitation of Europe," he said.

Willard Thorp, United States Delegate, said there could be no half-way point on the European Recovery Program.

Hector McNeill, British Delegate, said the Soviet resolution was nothing but propaganda.

Hart Backer Held for Using Loud Speaker

A Roanoke, Va., city councilman, campaigning for United States Senate Candidate James P. Hart, Jr., was arrested in Alexandria yesterday on a charge of operating a sound bus without permit or license.

He identified himself as Daniel J. Cronin, 34, Roanoke real estate broker, and was released on $50 collateral for appearance in Alexandria Police Court yesterday at 10 a. m.

Cronin said he was elected to the Roanoke City Council last month on an "anti-Byrd machine platform," and Hart, a Roanoke attorney who faces Senator A. Willis Robertson Tuesday in Virginia's Democratic Senate primary, branded the incident as a "prearranged Byrd-Tuck machine to harass me and stifle freedom of speech."

Hart was in Washington when the arrest was made, but hustled to Alexandria police headquarters as soon as he was notified. As Cronin talked to reporters at police headquarters, he handed policemen campaign literature, asking them to "help me beat the Byrd machine."

Police Chief Edgar Sims, however, pooh-poohed as "nonsense" Hart's charge that the arrest was motivated by politics. All police, he said, are instructed to make routine checks of sound trucks to see if they have complied with

Permanent Freight Rate Hike Granted Railroads by ICC

By The Associated Press

The Nation's railroads won yesterday a permanent $1,600,000,000 a year increase in freight rates.

The Interstate Commerce Commission decided that the "emergency" boost allowed the carriers since last October 1 should stay in effect. This averages 25 per cent. Rail lines asked for a 30 per cent rise but the ICC turned them down on the extra 5 per cent.

The permanent rates are effective on 15 days' notice to the public. They were granted equally to rail carriers, domestic water lines and freight forwarders, who collect small quantity shipments for forwarding in carlots.

"Emergency" increases granted during the last 10 months—first 10, then 20, eventually 25 per cent—all carried "ceilings" on rate boosts affecting a long list of commodities.

Today's order revised these limits, lowering some, raising others. The net result, the ICC said, was that the railroads might expect about $65,000,000 more revenue per year than they are receiving under present schedules.

The commission estimated the freight rate increases since October will yield about $1,535,000,000 annually in new railroad revenue. The carriers said the additional income was needed to meet increased operating costs, including higher wages.

Composer Stravinsky Sues Over Juke Song

Los Angeles, July 29 (AP).—Igor Stravinsky, composer of music for symphony and ballet, today sued Leedys Music Corp. for $250,000 on grounds it identified him falsely as composer of a juke-box torch song.

Stravinsky said the result was to damage his standing as a "world famous composer of serious and sincere music."

The song, "Summer Moon," was based on a theme from Stravinsky's "Firebird suite," but, said he, was composed by an "unknown."

Before the war, ESSKAY introduced this wonderful new shortening, and by the thousands housewives acclaimed it. Now it's BACK—better than ever because of new refining developments.

TASTELESS—ODORLESS
ESKO is completely different, a superior shortening. It's snow-white, with creamy texture—super-creamed for easier mixing. That's why it's always so easy to use.

BETTER COOKING RESULTS
Cakes made with ESKO are lighter, fluffier; ESKO pie crust is flakier, more tender; and ESKO deep fries like a dream, without smoking even at 400° F.

HIGHLY DIGESTIBLE
ESKO is highly digestible and rich in food and energy value.

ECONOMICAL
ESKO is more economical, too. It goes farther because of its proved greater shortening qualities.

KEEPS WITHOUT REFRIGERATION
ESKO keeps fresh without refrigeration. It is a perfect all-purpose shortening—does away with the need for different types of shortening for different uses.

Get acquainted with amazing ESKO today. Enjoy undreamed of baking and frying results. Ask your ESSKAY dealer for ESKO.

Vice President May Live in Blair House

Historic Blair House would become a temporary home for the Vice President and his family, under terms of two bills introduced in the House yesterday.

Both measures call for creation of a joint Senate-House commission to select a building to serve as the permanent home for the Nation's No. 2 executive.

The commission would have $2,500,000 to buy the residence, or build a new one. Meanwhile, the Vice President would find a haven in the Blair House, on Pennsylvania ave., across the street from the White House, which is used as a "guest house" for distinguished Government visitors.

The White House is the traditional home and office of the President, but the Vice President and his family have had to fend for themselves. President Truman, when Vice President, lived with his family in an apartment house at 4701 Connecticut ave. nw.

Zoning Plan In Arlington Praised, Hit

Arlington's proposed new master zoning plan yesterday drew praise from the National Capital Park & Planning Commission, and fire from one county citizens group.

Speaking for the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association, President J. Winfield Rankin attacked a proposal to rezone a large Rosslyn area to industrial.

The move, he declared, would create an "eyesore," would be injurious to health and local property values, and would cause the county loss in tax revenue.

He said Arlington now being used as industrial yields less than $1000 per acre in taxes but nearby land used for an apartment house yields more than $2000 per acre.

He said his group desired the land be zoned either commercial or residential to prevent creation of "an industrially blighted area" which would "mar the approach to Arlington from the north."

Meanwhile, NCPCC Chairman U. S. Grant, 3d, after a meeting with the Arlington Planning Commission, declared his group is "generally in agreement" with the proposed master plan.

Grant said he personally felt the Arlington plan restricts land as to density of housing in a way superior to District zoning practice. It limits the number of family units for each lot and limits size of lots for different types of zoning.

The Arlington plan, drawn up by the County Planning Commission, is expected to be adopted by this fall or early winter.

Trailer Village Rents to Go Up $2 September 1

Effective September 1, rents will go up at the Trailer Village on Telegraph rd. just outside Alexandria in Fairfax County, Va.

A. Lee Painter, jr., president of the American Trailer Co., Inc. here, yesterday said all basic trailer lot rentals would be increased $2 a month.

Each minor, regardless of age, he said, will be charged on the basis of $2 monthly. Electric hot plates, one-burner, will remain at $2 a month; two and three-burner plates will be $3 a month.

Painter said the firm was "compelled" to change its rental policy after being unable to find other means to meet rising costs.

The village, accommodating more than 200 trailers, has charged monthly rentals from $17 upward.

They 'Tied the Can' to Him

HORSEPLAY—Burke Irwin, 15, of 4325 8th st. nw., being kidded by cronies who tied his feet to the bottom doorhandle of a refuse can at Upshur st. and Rock Creek Church rd. nw. yesterday. An unduly alarmed passerby called the Fire Department and a rescue squad freed Irwin. Pictured are: From left, top: Bill Walker, 13, 4217 4th st. nw.; Richard Hilton, 13, 301 Taylor st. nw.; and Irwin. Bottom, Paul Broadhurst, 15, 311 Taylor st. nw.; Pat Walker, 14, brother of Bill, and Alfred Crowell, 17, 4212 7th st. nw.

2 Charged In Shooting

knowing who they were, according to Lieutenant Flaherty.

When the pair reentered the cafe, witnesses said, the uniformed man put his gun away, but the other man began to joke with Miss Kilmer, pointing a gun at her and at Stott and chanting "eenie, meenie, minie, moe."

The girl, who was in front of the service bar, became nervous and said, "Don't point that gun at me." Shortly after that, the gun went off and Miss Kilmer fell to the floor, a bullet through her left side. Later it was removed from her back.

Miss Kilmer, who lives with her grandmother at the Fairmont st. address, has been spending about six months of each year here and the rest of the time at her parents' home in Ellensburg, N. Y., neighbors said.

She attended school in Washington while here parents lived here, it was reported. Her grandmother, Mrs. Grace Kilmer, was with the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kilmer, in Ellensburg at the time of the shooting. Police, who notified them of the accident, expected them here shortly.

Both suspended policemen are "rookies," with less than one year of service. Holified, who was appointed to the force November 17, 1947, has two commendations on his record, one of them for discovering a fire and saving the lives of two persons April 13.

Edmondson was appointed June 1, 1948, and was assigned to No. 11 July 1. Holified was assigned to No. 1 Precinct January 1, 1948, and was transferred to No. 11 May 31.

The service revolvers of both policemen were taken for ballistics tests.

Moscow Cabbage Price

Moscow, July 29 (U.P.)—The city trading organization today announced seasonal reductions in the prices of some vegetables. The Moscow housewife now must pay per pound: 11 cents for cabbage, 17 cents for cucumbers, 65 cents for tomatoes, 57 cents for onions and nine cents for squash.

Noted Doctor Asks for Help In Finding Son

Chicago, July 29 (AP)—Dr. Willis J. Potts, noted "blue baby" surgeon, emerged from one of his famous operations at Children's Memorial Hospital today and faced a news conference he had summoned. He flopped wearily into a chair and began:

"Thanks a lot for coming, boys. I need your help. Two things have come to a head at the same time. "First, my son disappeared June 2 from the University of Rochester. He was in his third year of a premedical course and had several jobs on the side. I think he had been working too hard. "Now I have to go to the hospital myself this afternoon. They're going to perform a gall bladder operation on me Saturday. I've been putting it off as long as I can, because I wanted my boy with me. Now I can put it off any longer. "We spend millions chasing criminals, suppose, though, that trying to find a boy worth saving isn't news. "This act of publicity is horrible for me, but I don't care. I'm ready to do anything to get him back."

The son, Robert Eugene Potts, 21, married and the father of two small children. He left a note which read: "I'm leaving. I'm going to New York City and then to California." "Did you ever wander around Times Square in New York from 9 o'clock in the morning until midnight, hoping to see a face you were looking for?" Dr. Potts asked. "I did—several times. When I got tired, I sat on the fenders of parked automobiles."

William Brown, 57, Alexandria mechanic was acquitted in Alexandria Corporation Court yesterday of the June 1 slaying of Hazel Waugh, a boarding house neighbor.

Brown Freed In Slaying of Hazel Waugh

The jury took only 20 minutes to decide in Brown's favor. He maintained during the trial he had stabbed Mrs. Waugh, a former laundress at Alexandria Hospital, to prevent her from killing him.

Brown testified that after he, his wife and Mrs. Waugh had a drink together in the Browns' third-floor apartment at 413 Wilkes st., he had gone into his bedroom to lie down, when Mrs. Waugh came at him with a knife. He said he wrested the knife from her and plunged it into her chest in self-defense.

'Bras Rail' Wits Can Remain Free

District Court Justice James W. Morris yesterday denied the request of an assistant United States attorney that a witness in the "Bras Rail shooting" case be committed to jail or placed on bond to insure his appearance at the trial at 4 p.m.

The attorney, Charles B. Murray, told Justice Morris that he had reason to doubt that Louis B. Queen, 641 Aker st. ne., who is a barber at the Bras Rail, a cafe at 1739 7th st. nw., intended to appear at the September 20 trial.

He said his request on information that Queen's attitude about accepting a subpoena to the trial yesterday indicated he might ignore it.

Queen took the stand and assured the court that he would be present at the trial September 20. He said he had a pocketful of subpoenas in connection with the case and asked when he would be paid for them.

Murray said Queen would be paid after conclusion of the case, which the usual process. Justice Morris released Queen.

The U. S. marshals served Queen with a subpoena while he was in the color outside Murray's office, where he and several other witnesses had been asked to appear for further questioning in the case.

Aid results Due By End of Year, Hoffman Says

New York, July 30 (AP)—Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, said tonight on his arrival in a European conference on the Marshall Plan that the American people will start seeing results from their investment in Europe by the end of this year. Hoffman, who fled from Paris, where he suffered with the European Council on the Marshall Plan for six days, was scheduled to leave for Washington later tonight and said he would report to President Truman as soon as the President can return.

"My strongest impression on this trip was the difference between conditions in Europe today and conditions in 1946," Hoffman said.

THE HOUSEHOLD HELP
2 pkgs. 45¢Retail Store Held
Subject to Taft Act

A retail store was held subject to the Taft-Hartley law for the first time yesterday in a decision by an examiner for the National Labor Relations Board.

The examiner, Isadore Greenberg, overruled a plea by an AFL retail clerks' union that it could not have violated the law because the store, the A-1 Photo Service at San Pedro, Calif., is not engaged in interstate commerce.

Greenberg ruled that the store is in interstate commerce because it buys 44 per cent of its merchandise outside California. The store sold all but $600 of its $133,700 sales in a year at retail within California.

Greenberg's decision was at odds with the policy of the NLRB itself. The five-man board contends it should consider only cases having a substantial effect on interstate commerce. But the NLRB's general counsel, Robert N. Denham, maintains that any establishment in interstate commerce—no matter how small its business across State lines—comes under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The examiner's recommendation takes effect as a board order unless it is contested by one of the interested parties within 30 days. Greenberg ruled that the union had failed to bargain in good faith because it insisted that the photo shop continue a closed shop provision, requiring all employees to be union members. The Taft-Hartley Act prohibits the closed shop.

However, in another phase of the case, Greenberg said the union was not guilty of causing the employer to favor nonunion workers over union members by insisting on the closed shop. He said no such discrimination could occur until an actual case of favoritism should take place under the closed shop.

No Campaign Plans Made, Truman Asserts

President Truman said yesterday he has made no campaign plans whatsoever.

Mr. Truman made this comment to a news conference when he was told that there has been a published story he is going to campaign by plane.

White House aides generally expect Mr. Truman to begin campaigning as the Democratic presidential nominee sometime after Labor Day. On his recent cross-country trip, the President indicated that he planned an extensive stump campaign prior to the election.

Laundry Workers To Back Truman

Indianapolis, July 29 (AP).—The AFL Laundry Workers Union, representing some 200,000 members, today announced it would support President Truman for election.

The announcement was made by President Sam J. Byers at international headquarters of the union. Byers said members of the union's executive board supported Mr. Truman "unanimously and enthusiastically" in a telegraphic poll.

Byers said he had sent a telegram to the President informing him of the union's action.

Park View Playground Due To Be Changed to Negro Use

Transfer of Park View Playground, Warder and Newton sts. n.w., from a white to Negro recreational unit was approved yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The request was made by the District Recreation Board after a study of the residential area showed that more Negro than white children will be served by the playground.

The commission also approved development of Blow School playground, 19th st. and Benning rd. n.e., into a recreational unit for Negroes, and it authorized the purchase of more than an acre of land at Bancroft and S sts. n.w. for a permanent addition to Mitchell playground. The land, formerly the property of the German government, will be purchased from the Alien Property Custodian. It is now in use as play space under an agreement.

Construction work on the extension of the George Washington Memorial Highway between Key Bridge and the upper end of Spout Run at Locom Lane was inspected by the planners, who were guests of the Arlington County Planning Board at a luncheon meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Plans to extend the highway to Chain Bridge were discussed at the joint meeting.

The commission also met with J. Bond Smith and Warren Buckner, legal representatives of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and amended an agreement for the purchase of stream parklands to include four additional streams. They are Little Falls Branch and

2 More D. C. Area Polio Cases Listed

Two additional Greater Washington cases of infantile paralysis were reported by health authorities yesterday. This brings to 29 the total of polio patients treated, or under treatment in District hospitals since January 1.

One victim was identified as a 6-year-old girl of the 1200 block of S. Thomas st., Arlington. She was admitted to Children's Hospital on Tuesday.

The other case was a 9-year-old boy of the 200 block of W. Jefferson st., Falls Church, Va., admitted to Children's Hospital last Friday. While District Health Department officials report they are not alarmed at all by the situation here, infantile paralysis cases continued in epidemic proportions in North Carolina.

Thirty-nine new cases reported yesterday boosted the North Carolina figure to 1037 this year.

Virginia reported three other new cases, bringing the State total for the year to 88. Virginia cases included a 4-year-old boy in Lynchburg, a 6-year-old boy at Tunstall and a 39-year-old man in Fredericksburg. Sixteen of Virginia's cases have been in the Hampton Roads area, with the next greatest concentration in northern Virginia near Washington.

Girl, 11, Bears Child

Atlanta, July 29 (AP).—An 11-year-old Negro girl gave birth to a baby at Grady Memorial Hospital here. The girl was admitted last Friday morning and the baby, a normal boy, was born that afternoon. Doctors said the delivery was normal. The mother has been discharged from the hospital.

Army Announces Contest For New Soldiers' Melody

New York, July 29 (AP).—The Army wants a song.

It can't draft one. It can't requisition one. So it's using another system—a contest.

First Army headquarters yesterday said either soldiers or civilians may submit entries.

What is wanted is a song "worthy of becoming an over-all Army song."

All kinds of musical ditties, both published and unpublished, have been kicking around in the Army for a long time now, but none of them meets the requirements.

The new soldiers' melody, said the Army, must be "of military character, written in a rhythm and range which can easily be used for marching and singing."

The song selected will be published, distributed on records, and performed on Army radio shows.

The winner will be announced on Army Day in 1949.

His reward?

"The winner will have the distinction of writing the winning song," said an Army representative.

Press Radio Body Organized by Stations

Philadelphia, July 29 (AP).—Radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia organized today into a Chesapeake Associated Press Radio Association to promote better news coverage throughout the area.

William C. Hardy, manager of WFMD, Frederick, was elected chairman of the new association. Ben Strouse, executive vice president and general manager of WJDC, Washington, and R. J. (Jack) Embry, vice president of WJLA, Baltimore, were elected vice chairmen. Max Fullerton, AP chief of bureau in Baltimore, was named secretary.

29 Pilgrims' Plight Studied By Truman

President Truman is giving personal consideration to the plight of 29 pilgrims who crossed the Atlantic in a 64-foot ketch to escape Russian oppression in Soviet-dominated Baltic countries.

The President's interest in the case was disclosed yesterday by Immigration Service officials who declined to predict what action the White House might take.

The refugees are being detained at Boston, where they landed last Thursday after 43 uncomfortable days at sea on the perilous voyage from Sweden. They found temporary sanctuary in Sweden four years ago, after fleeing the Russians in Latvia and Lithuania.

It also was learned yesterday that the White House has prepared for submission to the Senate for approval suggested members of the displaced persons commission to be set up under the recently enacted displaced persons act.

Ugo Carusi, former commissioner of immigration and naturalization and at present attached to the State Department, is expected to be named chairman of the commission.

Appointment of the Commission would clear the way for the establishment of regulations concerning those who reached Boston last Thursday and others who have braved the Atlantic in small boats in the last two years to reach the United States.

Dutch Scolded For Breaking U. N. Truce

Lake Success, N. Y., July 29 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council tonight indirectly rebuked the Dutch for violating the Dutch-Indonesian truce by hampering the republic's trade.

The council passed a mild Chinese resolution calling for "early and full" implementation of all terms of the 6-month-old armistice.

The resolution was based in large part on a report of the U. N.'s on-the-spot commission which stated that trade restrictions by the Dutch were gravely impeding the economic recovery of the republic.

The truce agreement specifically banned such restrictions, and the commission called for "early and full" implementation of all terms of the 6-month-old armistice.

Dutch were criticized by several delegations, including the United States and Russia.

In the final vote Russia and the Ukraine abstained because they desired far stronger U. N. protests against Dutch policies. The other nine council members voted for the proposal.

Earlier, the Indonesian Republic announced it was withdrawing from peace talks with the Dutch until the Dutch make concessions, with Ward's 24 years.

Chances Seen Good for New Parleys

By Eddy Gilmore
Moscow, July 29 (AP).—Informed sources said today the chances are good that a four-power conference of foreign ministers on Berlin and Germany will be arranged for Paris at about the time of the U. N. Assembly meeting September 21.

These sources made this comment after United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith returned by plane from strategy talks in London and Berlin where he saw top-level diplomats of the three Western powers. Smith was accompanied by Frank Roberts, private secretary to British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Smith refused to comment on anything but the weather and went at once to the American Embassy. Roberts likewise refused any statement.

It was believed Smith will take the leading role in prospective talks with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov concerning the possibility of opening negotiations. But it was believed no time would be lost in getting the conversations started.

The Moscow correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune reported today that the Soviet Foreign Ministry said Molotov was "out of town." Apparently there will be a delay in the talks, the correspondents reported, adding that it was probable that Molotov was on vacation.

Shertok Says Jews to Seek More Land

Tel Aviv, Israel, July 29 (AP).—Moshe Shertok, Foreign Minister of Israel, said tonight the Jews would seek additional territory in Palestine as a result of Israeli victories over the Arab armies.

He demanded a reconsideration of all the boundaries set last November 29 under the United Nations plan "because of the course of events since then."

Shertok called for "heavy indemnities" against the Arabs for what he termed "hundreds of millions of dollars lost by direct war expenses."

Russia Loses Move For International Rule

Lake Success, July 29 (AP).—Russia lost a new attempt today to revive the United Nations plan for an international regime in Jerusalem.

The Soviet defeat occurred in the U. N. Trusteeship Council after Russia demanded immediate action on the draft statute which was to have governed the Holy City under the partition plan.

The Council, voted 8 to 1, with three abstentions, to postpone the Jerusalem discussion indefinitely.

Oil Refineries

Reopened in Haifa

Tel Aviv, Israel, July 29 (AP).—As Dr. Friedrich Bernstein, Minister of Trade and Industry, hailed the reopening of Haifa oil refineries today, the Arabs were reported preparing to close permanently the Iraq Petroleum Co.'s pipeline from Iraq to Haifa.

Arab sources said the Jews would have to turn to Communist-dominated Romania for oil.

out to talk to the Secret Service . . . and found them all armed to the teeth, with, perhaps, a dozen tommy guns among the group. I asked them what it was all about. They told me they could not take any chances on anything happening to the President.

"This House-Pocus"

"None of this hocus-pocus had gone on when Giraud saw the President and it was simply an indication of the atmosphere in which De Gaulle found himself at Casablanca.

"To me the armed Secret Service was unbelievably funny and nothing in Gilbert and Sullivan could have beaten it. Poor General De Gaulle, who probably did not know it, was covered by guns throughout his whole visit."

Voluminous Notes Kept

Hopkins kept voluminous notes on the Roosevelt-Churchill talks with De Gaulle and Andre Giraud, always held separately, on the tense French political situation.

They were nearing agreement, Hopkins wrote, when he got his sudden inspiration for a face-to-face meeting on the morning of January 24.

Giraud had left the conference room and De Gaulle had entered. Churchill was outside saying goodbye to Giraud when Hopkins joined them.

"Churchill walked in and I went after Giraud, believing that if the four of them could get in a room together we could get an agreement," Hopkins wrote.

"The President was surprised at seeing Giraud but took it in his stride. De Gaulle was a little bewildered, Churchill grunted.

"But the President went to work on them with Churchill backing him up vigorously. De Gaulle finally agreed to a joint statement and before they could catch their breath the President suggested a photograph."

It resulted in the famed hand-shaking pictures of the two opposing French leaders.

10 Killed In Argentine Air Crash

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 29 (AP).—A four-engine Argentine flying boat crashed into the fog-bound River Platte today. Ten persons were killed, nine were missing and four hurt.

Only one of the 24 passengers and crewmen escaped injury.

The ALFA Airline issued a passenger list which gave all addresses as Rosario.

The plane was believed attempting to land when it crashed.

Divers were trying to recover the bodies.

19 Die in First Crash On Chennault Airline

Shanghai, July 29 (AP).—Nineteen passengers and crewmen, including an American pilot, were killed today in the crash of a China Civil Air Transport two-engine C-46 plane near Shantung on the Yellow Sea coast.

The wreck was the first fatal accident logged by C. A. T., bossed by retired United States Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, wartime commander of the Flying Tigers.

The pilot was Capt. Richard E. Tarbet, 29, of Logan, Utah.

Berlin Reds Walk Out of City Council

Berlin, July 29 (AP).—Representatives of the Russian-sponsored Socialist Unity Party (SED) walked out of the Berlin City Council today, spreading the rupture of local government in this Soviet-blockaded city which already has two police chiefs.

The SED councilmen thus adopted the tactics of the Russians who previously quit two four-power governmental bodies—the Allied Control Council and the Commandatura.

The mass walkout took place when the SED failed to delay a vote on a resolution branding the five-week-old Soviet blockade of Berlin "a crime against humanity." The resolution, introduced by the Socialists, was approved 85 to 1.

Not Believed Final

The Russians often have accused the city government of being a "tool of the west." There has been talk in German political quarters that the SED eventually might force events to a point where separate eastern and western Berlin city governments would have to be set up.

[Tonight, in a statement issued through the Soviet-controlled A.D.N. News Agency, the Communists said their walkout was not final but merely meant as a protest against the "provocative" resolution, the New York Herald Tribune reported.]

Karl Luedke, an SED spokesman, said his party would continue to take part in the present predominantly anti-Communist city government. Party leaders met for a special meeting.

The city council met in an atmosphere of tension. The day began with charges in the Communist press that the anti-Communist majority in the city government planned to pack the council chamber with plainclothesmen from the western sectors in order to touch off a "bloody provocation." No incidents materialized, however.

Police Situation Tense

A potentially explosive situation was involved in the city's police force. Johannes Stumm, anti-Communist deputy chief, has set up headquarters in the American sector and issued a statement to Berlin police that only his orders are binding.

In the Soviet sector, Paul Markgraf, Moscow-trained German war hero, did the same thing. He said he had Soviet army backing and would carry out Russian orders to fire Stumm.

The city government fired Markgraf three days ago. He was accused of abducting Berliners and purging the police force of anti-Communists. Yesterday the 61-year-old woman mayor of Berlin, Mrs. Louise Schroeder, defied a Soviet order to dismiss Stumm.

The American-British airlift into Berlin chalked up new records. In the past 24 hours a total of 544 flights, of which 294 were American, reached this blockaded city with food and fuel.

The British charged three Yank fighters buzzed three British planes in the Hamburg corridor. The Russian representative in the Berlin air safety center said the incidents were being investigated "and if found to be true the pilots concerned will be severely dealt with."

The British announcement said.

Farben Directors Acquitted of Plotting War But 13 Are Found Guilty of Plundering

Neurenberg, Germany (Friday)—Four more German industrialists of the giant I. G. Farben Chemical combine were convicted as war criminals today.

Their conviction by an American court raised to 13 the number of former Farben officials found guilty of war crimes.

The 13 men were charged with plundering Germany's neighbor countries and using Hitler's slave labor program to further their own ends. The full group of 24 defendants, making up Farben's high command, was acquitted yesterday on charges of planning and waging aggressive war.

Sentences will be imposed this afternoon.

The United States tribunal is headed by Judge Curtis Shaker of Vincennes, Ind. Today's convictions were on charges of misuse of slave labor. One of those found guilty on this count was Fritz Ter Meer who was convicted yesterday of plunder and spoliation of occupied countries.

Others Convicted

Besides Ter Meer those convicted of misuse of slave labor were Carl Krauch, chairman of the board of Farben, Otto Ambros, Heinrich Butefisch and Walter Duerfeld.

Those found guilty of plunder and spoliation besides Ter Meer were Hermann Schmitz, Georg von Schnitzler, Ernest Bueglin, Paul Haefliger, Max Ilgner, Friedrich Jaehne, Heinrich Oster and Hans Kugler.

Acquitted on all counts were Fritz Gajewski, Heinrich Hoerlein, August von Knieriem, Christian Schneider, Hans Kuehne, Carl Lautenschlaeger, Wilhelm Mann, Karl Wurster, Heinrich Gattineau and Erich von der Heyde.

The court laced into the Farben directorate for shutting its eyes on the treatment of the victims of forced labor in Farben's synthetic rubber plant at Auschwitz.

Blame for plotting and waging war lay with the politicians and militarists of Hitler's Third Reich, the court said in summing up the evidence presented at the 11-month trial. The judgment continued:

"The defendants were neither high public officials nor military officers. Their participation was that of followers—not leaders. If we lower the standard of participation (in war guilt) to include them, it would be difficult to find a logical place to draw a line between guilty and innocent among the great mass of German people. It is unthinkable that the majority of Germans should be condemned as guilty of committing crimes against peace."

Although Krauch, the chairman, was Hermann Goering's man for economics in the four-year plan which geared Germany for war, the court found he did not do anything except promote German economy.

Farben controlled 400 firms in Germany and more than 500 throughout the world at the height of its power.

The other three judges were Paul M. Hebert of Baton Rouge, La.; James Morris of Bismarck, N. Dak.; and Clarence F. Merrell of Indianapolis, Ind.

The 20,000-word indictment against the 24 directors was handed down on May 3, 1947. The defendants pleaded innocent on August 14, and the trial got under way August 26.

Royal Orders Survey Of German Trials

Army Secretary Royall said yesterday he has ordered a special survey of the trials of German war criminals at Dachau, Germany.

A number of defendants there have filed appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Justice Gordon Simpson of the Texas Supreme Court was named to review the American military tribunals and has left for Germany.

Attlee Doesn't Expect War, Informant Says

London, July 29 (NYT).—Authoritative quarters reported today that Prime Minister Clement Attlee told a meeting yesterday of the executive committee of the Labor Party, whose members include several members of the government, that the government does not believe that war will result from the Berlin crisis.

"The government does not believe that Berlin is a prelude to war," Attlee was quoted as saying.

called for these to be reduced to 716,000 by March 31, 1949. Presumably she has about 860,000 armed men this month.

Throughout the brief statement, offered as a substitute for a debate on international affairs, Bevin indicated the hope the latest approach to Moscow might break the deadlock.

"The object of the diplomatic steps now being taken is to clarify the position in order to ascertain whether there is any prospect of removing obstacles to discussions taking place with a view to a settlement which the government desire and which we hope will lead to peace and security in Europe for us all," he said.

Again he emphasized that Britain would not negotiate under duress—while the Berlin blockade continues.

He said the Russians claimed the introduction into Berlin of the new West German currency was at the root of the present difficulties, and "if so, our representatives in Berlin are prepared and always have been prepared to enter into discussions on the question of currency."

He declined to be drawn into a discussion of these questions:

Coffins for Victims of German Blast Disaster

SEARCH GOES ON—German workmen unload wooden coffins at the I. G. Farben chemical plant, Ludwigshafen, Germany, to receive bodies of some of the victims of Wednesday's terrific explosion. Ruins are in the background. Rescue work was going ahead yesterday, despite recurrent explosions imperiling lives of the weary searchers.

Scores of Blast Dead Seen Floating in Farben Ruins

Ludwigshafen, Germany, July 29 (AP)—Weary American troops plowed a path to a death trap in the explosion-torn I. G. Farben Chemical plant tonight and then withdrew when French soldiers said their "gallant services" no longer were needed.

The building, one of the most badly wrecked in yesterday's blast in this French zone city, was believed to contain from 60 to 140 bodies.

A German policeman said scores of bodies could be seen floating in several feet of water and ammonia in the basement. He expressed belief it might take two weeks to recover all bodies.

The list of the known dead grew. German police said there now are 133 known dead and that between 200 and 250 other persons are missing and believed dead. The injured total 2,200, they said.

In Paris, the French commissariat for German affairs said tonight about 100 persons were killed and that about 85 bodies have been identified. A statement denied reports that the plant was making war explosives.

Communists newspapers in Berlin claimed, without offering proof, that the huge factory in the French occupation zone was making war materials illegally.

Germans investigating Europe's greatest disaster since the war brushed aside the charges. They said preliminary findings indicated the blast was touched off by ethyl chloride, an industrial chemical.

A chemist who worked at the plant said only industrial products were turned out there.

When French soldiers blocked German reporters from entering the plant several survivors commented: "No wonder. They've got something to hide." Whether the workers spoke from knowledge or mere excitement could not be ascertained.

French estimates of the casualties have been consistently lower er Clement Davies pledged "full support" of the government's foreign policy.

Moscow Press Admits No Crisis in Berlin

Moscow, July 29 (NYT).—There is no public indication in Moscow of any sense of urgency over Berlin.

There is no suggestion in the Soviet press that Berlin situation is fraught with danger or that tension has reached an uncomfortable stage. On the contrary, Soviet news reports suggest that everything at Berlin is going as well as can be expected.

U. N. Move on Blockade Urged

Lake Success, July 29 (AP)—Syria's Faris el Khouri urged the Big Four powers today to put the Berlin blockade before the Security Council. No one took up his surprise demand.

El Khouri said it would be more honorable for the four powers—France, Britain, the United States and Russia—to bring the Berlin dispute to the Council than for some small power to do so.

He labeled the Berlin blockade a threat to peace. That is serious talk in U. N. language.

A month ago there were reports that Trygve Lie, U. N. Secretary General, or some power might put the tense Berlin situation up to the Council.

Lie's expiratory feelers to the western powers produced a rebuff.

Artificial Insemination

London, July 29 (AP)—A special committee appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury decided today that human artificial insemination by anyone but the husband should be declared a criminal offense.

They were reported to have told him they preferred to try to settle it among themselves at that time.

El Khouri was asked whether he would bring the case before the Council. He said he would have to consult his government.

Dr. Phillip C. Jessup, United States deputy, said "No comment."

Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, said "I ignore such statements."

Of Loyalty Check

Secret Probe By Senators Is Revealed

By the United Press

A Senate committee disclosed yesterday it has been conducting a secret investigation "after some time" into President Truman's loyalty check campaign to rid the Federal payroll of Communists.

The inquiry came to light when Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) confirmed reports that Elizabeth T. Bentley, alleged leader of a wartime Soviet spy ring, testified at closed committee hearings Tuesday and Wednesday.

(The New York World Telegram has identified Miss Bentley, 36, as a disillusioned former Communist agent who went to the FBI in 1945 with information that paved the way for last week's grand jury indictment of 12 United States Communist Party leaders on charges of trying to overthrow the Government.)

Ferguson said she was called before his special "catchall" investigating committee in connection with an inquiry into the efficiency with which the executive branch of the Government is riding itself of subversive elements.

He described the witness as "a one-time Communist espionage agent" but gave no details of her testimony.

(The World Telegram said many of the spies in a war-time ring headed by Miss Bentley were Government employees.)

While Ferguson avoided detailed discussion of his inquiry, an informed source said it is designed purely to "get information" about the loyalty check of two million Federal workers being conducted by the Civil Service Commission and the FBI on White House orders.

"We are not out to smear anyone," this source said.

Chairman Edward H. Rees (R., Kans.) of the House Civil Service Committee charged Wednesday the Administration program is "ineffective" and said his group will make its own investigation.

Rees said as far as he can find out "not a single employee has been fired" under the year-old program.

Miss Bentley is scheduled to testify later this week before the House Un-American Activities Committee which also conducts frequent investigations of alleged Communist operations both in and out of the Government.

Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.) sharply criticized the committee in a House speech yesterday for its treatment of Dr. E. U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

The committee charged last spring that Condon was "one of the weakest links in our atomic security." Condon has denied the charge and has been cleared by Government superiors, including the Atomic Energy Commission.

Claims He Has Proof

Acting Chairman John McDowell (R., Pa.) announced earlier this week the committee is still prepared to prove its assertion that Condon is "too indiscreet" to hold his important research post.

McDowell said the committee would hold public hearings, which Condon has frequently demanded, within a few weeks. No date was set, however.

Reporters for The Washington Post, John G. Norris, who has just returned from Germany, will be interviewed at 8:15 p. m. today over Station WINX by J. R. Higgins, managing editor of The Washington Post.

Norris flew to Berlin early this month to report on the American-British countermeasure to the Russian blockade of the former German capital—the around-the-clock airlift—and the Berlin crisis in general.

Langley Field, Va., July 29 (AP).—First Sgt. Marjorie L. Derrick, formerly of the Women's Army Corps, became the first member of the new Women of the Air Force service at ceremonies today at Langley Air Force base, officials here said.

The new Waf also was the first South Carolina woman to join the Wac. She enlisted in Columbia, in 1942.

South Korea Election

Seoul, Korea, July 29 (AP).—Russian-controlled radio Pyongyang today announced Communist plans to hold "elections" in American-occupied South Korea as well as in Soviet-occupied North Korea.

The broadcast said the southern Koreans would elect an assembly which in turn would select representatives to go to the Soviet occupation zone capital of Pyongyang to sit in an assembly there. North Korean elections have been set for August 25.

Lions Pledge Aid to U. N. Peace Effort

New York, July 29 (AP).—Lions International commended the United Nations' efforts for peace and condemned "the communistic way of life" at its closing convention session today.

Dr. Eugene S. Briggs, 58, president of Phillips University, Enid, Okla., was advanced formally to the presidency of the International at the session. He had been first vice president.

Briggs urged all Lions Club members to give "unflinching support and determined effort" to the U. N. in their local communities.

Also approved were resolutions urging statehood for Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Slavs Defy Cominform

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 29 (AP).—Yugoslav Communists replied today to Cominform demands for the scalp of Marshal Tito by rejecting him head of the powerful Politburo.

Earlier the Communist Congress elected Tito and his entire list of 62 candidates to the new central committee, which then chose the Yugoslav premier as its secretary general. He thus was confirmed in the role which Premier Stalin occupies in Soviet Russia.

The central committee also retained in the Politburo three other chief figures who had been singled out for Cominform attack. These were Eduard Kardelj, vice premier; Alexander Rankovic, Interior Minister; and Milovan Djilas.

Yugoslav Communist thus wound up a week-long congress which formally declared the Cominform charges unfair, unjust and untrue and refused to admit that the Yugoslav party has been excluded from the nine-nation Communist Information Bureau.

Hungary Confirms Holding of Yugoslav

Budapest, Hungary, July 29 (AP).—The Hungarian government today confirmed in a communique that it was holding Zhivko Boarov, press secretary of the Yugoslav embassy, for the murder here of Milos Matich, a pro-Cominform Yugoslav student.

The communique said that on July 23 Hungary gave Yugoslav officials 24 hours to agree to surrender Boarov. On July 26, it continued, Boarov was delivered to Budapest police.

Communist papers said Boarov admitted killing Matich in a dispute over politics, the Associated Press reported.

Finland Gets 1-Party Rule

Helsinki, Finland, July 29 (AP).—K. A. Fagerholm presented to President Juho Paasikivi today a one-party Social Democratic government which already has drawn the hostility of the Communist-dominated Popular Democrat bloc.

Fagerholm, former speaker of Parliament, formed his one-party cabinet when the Popular Democrats refused to join in a coalition government in which he offered them five minor places in the cabinet. The Communists insisted on three important cabinet posts, the Foreign Ministry, Interior and Trade.

Times-Herald

That Mrs. Eleanor Patterson made friends as well as foes in her extraordinary lifetime is the testament of the news-making life that has just been published. In that instrument the public will discover that these friendships included her coworkers on the Times-Herald. The property is divided among her seven leading executives, all of them experienced newspapermen who helped her to make a commercial success out of her newspaper. The editor, Mr. Frank C. Waldrop, also becomes a trustee of the remainder of her estate. This is all sweet remembrance, acknowledgment of services faithfully rendered, as well as a token of the personal affection that Mrs. Patterson bore for her coadjutors. Mrs. Patterson may have been an autocrat in the conduct of her newspaper, but the testimony of her will is that she never forgot that property was made of flesh-and-blood people. The bequest is a reminder of the human factor in her tempestuous life and a pledge of friendship beyond the grave. We felicitate the seven members of her staff who succeed her as proprietors. By grace of Mrs. Patterson they have an inheritance which gives them title to that free development of personality which Andre Gide says is the highest luxury.

Wheat Agreement

It is a little late for the President and Congress to be talking about ratification of the international wheat agreement. If the agreement is not a dead duck, it has been pretty severely blighted. There are several reasons why the accord negotiated among 36 nations last March did not materialize, but a principal factor was the failure of Congress to approve the pact by the July 1 deadline. This amounted in effect to a repudiation of the instrumental part this country took in framing the agreement in the first place.

After the United States failed to act, five adherents to the pact withdrew their ratifications. Among these was an important wheat producer, Australia. The United Kingdom, where there was strong pressure against the agreement because of the feeling that Britain would be tied to high wheat prices in a falling market, then backed out. It may be that if Congress disposes of the pact favorably during the special session, there may be reconsideration of these rejections. However, prospects of American action are dim. Senator Vandenberg speaks, among other things, about "the liability for large export subsidies." At the time the pact was negotiated this was a very real consideration, and one which the Department of Agriculture had not explored fully with Congress.

Delay may thus be the best course now, but it would be unfortunate if the concept of wheat stabilization were to die. Even if the agreement cannot be set in operation now, the Senate could afford to express an interest that would lead to a revival of negotiations next year. At that time perhaps the pressure for wheat will have relaxed sufficiently to persuade at least one of the two principal stand-offs, Argentina and Russia, of the advantages of cooperation. And certainly our own past experience with wheat surpluses should convince us of the desirability of an international effort to stabilize supply and demand relationships.

Disaster Aid

French and American military forces were at hand to lend emergency aid on Thursday when explosions and fire caused thousands of casualties and wrecked the huge I. G. Farben chemical works in Ludwigshafen, Germany. Since they are operating in an occupation zone under military government, they possess undoubted authority to do all they can for the immediate relief of suffering and the later fostering of rehabilitation. The assistance of the United States might not so readily be made available, however, in case of a comparable disaster in this country. For there is no agency of the Federal Government authorized, or prepared, to intervene where needed in a local situation with full effectiveness.

In a remarkably timely article, "Let's Organize to Fight Disasters," prepared for the monthly publication of the Federal Works Agency which he heads, Maj. Gen. Philip B.

Fleming points to the need to develop means of Federal assistance on a standby basis in case disaster strikes. It goes without saying that the American people want their central government to help their fellow countrymen when the need arises. Help is always forthcoming in crisis as generously and speedily as circumstances permit. A variety of Federal agencies under the coordination of the Federal Works Agency rushed to deal with the ravages of the Columbia River in the recent Northwest floods. Similarly, Federal aid was made available in the Texas City tragedy, the Southeastern hurricane, the Maine fire and other major regional disasters.

But, says General Fleming, in each case "assistance was handled as a separate package. Some sort of over-all organization to handle the situation was set up anew each time. . . . Sometimes it was necessary for special legislation to be passed and funds provided." He proposes, instead, that "an agency of the Federal Government be empowered to deal with similar emergencies as they may occur in the future," and that it be responsible for advance planning "in order in the future to render aid at once without the need of constant enabling acts for authority and funds."

General Fleming likens such preparation aptly enough to the maintenance of a trained fire department for the purpose of combating fires as soon as they break out. It seems a sensible sort of insurance. Congress already has before it a pair of bills, one by Senator Aiken and another by Senator Cordon, to make this possible. They ought to be enacted into law before another emergency finds us unprepared.

U. N. Probe

The probe into the extra-official activities of delegates to the United Nations comes as a surprise, for only a few days ago Secretary Marshall denied knowledge of any abuse of privilege by U. N. delegates. While it is entirely legitimate to investigate charges to that effect made by his subordinates, the timing of the Marshall announcement is most unfortunate. For it will seriously impair the chances of congressional approval of the $5-million-dollar United Nations loan and aggravate the growing tension resulting from charges brought against U. N. delegates.

Under the terms of reference the investigating committee is asked to determine whether existing international agreements and relevant legislation prevent the exclusion from this country of persons whose presence is inconsistent with our national security. Similar questions are asked as to administrative practices and procedures. Much depends upon the way in which the committee interprets this assignment. If confined to an inquiry into the adequacy of the legislative and procedural arrangements designed to insure the exclusion of individuals connected with the U. N. who have abused their privileges, the U. N. itself has no ground of just complaint. But if the inquiry looks toward a tightening of regulations for admission of accredited U. N. delegates who have a clean record so far as this country is concerned, the United Nations will feel justly aggrieved and might well conclude that the retention of its headquarters in the United States was no longer desirable.

It is absolutely essential to the effective functioning of such an organization as the U. N. that its delegates shall be freely chosen by the nations whom they represent and that they shall have full liberty of speech and action in the discharge of their official duties. The law approving the U. N. headquarters agreement passed by Congress in August, 1947, specifically provides that U. S. laws and regulations regarding the entry of aliens shall not be so applied as to interfere with the exercise of transit privileges accorded delegates under the agreement. In case of abuse of the privileges of residence the United States is protected under that law since proceedings may be instituted against an offender to require his departure, with the approval of the Secretary of State after consultation with U. N. officials. Another law passed by the Seventy-ninth Congress also provides that the archives of international organizations shall be inviolable.

Unilateral action on our part to prevent the entry or bring about the deportation of accredited delegates merely because our authorities consider them undesirable or a potential threat to national security would properly be resented. Protection of the privileges and immunities extended to U. N. delegates has been recognized from the beginning by the United States as a condition essential to making the United Nations an effective instrumentality for furthering international understanding and world peace. In that connection it is worth noting that the bill approved at the last session of Congress by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs authorizing a $5-million-dollar loan for construction of U. N. headquarters also includes a convention defining the privileges and immunities of the United Nations. That convention, which has already been ratified by 25 member nations, grants full immunities to officials of the U. N. and accords U. N. experts such privileges and immunities "as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions during the period of their missions."

The House Committee report points out significantly that the change proposed by this convention is one of principle rather than of detail—the chief difference being that the privileges accorded under the convention would be rights exercised under international law instead of concessions extended by this country on its own terms. The report goes on to say that the arrangements regarding pecuniary and personal immunity parallel the principles established between the League of Nations and the government of the Swiss Republic and between the U. N. and Switzerland regarding League properties taken over by the U. N.

If this country, motivated by fears for its own security, were to enact restrictive laws or set up regulatory procedures that necessitated preliminary screening of U. N. delegates at our dictation, and hampered the freedom of those delegates in the discharge of their official duties, the U. N. could not do business on American soil as a genuine international agency. It would have to remove its headquarters to some country, preferably Switzerland, where it could carry on its legitimate activities without interference from the harboring government.

Perfect Description

Representative McDowell, a man not easily influenced by facts, has insisted anew that the House Un-American Activities Committee designation of Dr. Edward U. Condon as "one of the weakest links in our atomic security" is "almost a perfect description." To all but Mr. McDowell and his committee colleagues, this must seem a highly reassuring assertion. For if Dr. Condon is its weakest link, the chain of American atomic security must be stout and strong indeed.

Dr. Condon was one of the original members of the National Defense Research Subcommittee which carried out the first overall survey of problems related to developing nuclear energy from atomic fission. He served in 1943 as associate director of the Los Alamos laboratory and was cleared for that position by the Manhattan District, then under the direction of Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves. After being nominated by the President in 1945 to serve as director of the National Bureau of Standards, he was confirmed in that office by the Senate of the United States. He was chosen by the Senate's Special Committee on Atomic Energy as its scientific adviser. He has since been subjected, largely as a result of wholly unsubstantiated aspersions cast upon his discretion by members of the Un-American Activities Committee, to two detailed and exhaustive investigations by the FBI. On the basis of these investigations, he was completely cleared, so far as his loyalty is concerned, by the Loyalty Review Board of the Department of Commerce and, more recently, so far as his discretion is concerned, by the Atomic Energy Commission itself. Thus he may probably be said to rank as the most sedulously screened security case in the whole of the United States.

But Mr. McDowell is not prepared to take the word of Military Intelligence, the FBI and the Atomic Energy Commission. "They perhaps don't know what we know," he says, "or if they do and still cleared him they should be investigated themselves." So, as soon as Representative Thomas, the chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, has recovered his health sufficiently to come to Washington, the committee is going to hale Dr. Condon to a public hearing—something for which he has been pleading for more than a year. This could result, of course, only in one more quite needless clearance for the scientist—if the committee were governed by facts and genuinely concerned with security. But its whole history indicates that its interest is exclusively in headlines and heresy hunting.

If the Condon hearing is ever actually held, we hope that some member of the Senate—the chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee would be an appropriate choice—will come before the House committee and tell what he knows about Dr. Condon's discretion. And we hope that responsible House leaders will at last put a stop to this nonsense. For it is nonsense of a most dangerous sort. It entails a form of persecution tending to make Government service seem intolerable to men of science. And it constitutes, therefore, a threat of the utmost gravity to the security it pretends to protect.

Sychrava's Freedom

No one is happier than this newspaper over the report in a letter from the Czech Embassy printed elsewhere on this page that the famed Czechoslovakian editor, Dr. D. Lev Sychrava, is now safe in London. Our earlier editorial to which the letter refers was based on information from State Department sources to the effect that Dr. Sychrava had been arrested while trying to leave Czechoslovakia after the Communist coup d'etat and that nothing had been heard of him since. His disappearance had caused consternation among Americans who had associated with him during his service as vice chairman of the Subcommittee of Freedom of Information of the United Nations Human Rights Commission. These same State Department sources now confirm the error of the implication that Dr. Sychrava had been liquidated and admit that he is in London. Incidentally, the error ought not to have occurred if State Department intelligence had been on its toes.

But the gloating in which our Czech correspondent so amply indulges leaves several questions unanswered. It is noteworthy that Dr. Sychrava is not following his profession in his native land. Why was it necessary for him to leave, and why did he feel compelled to try to cross the border illegally? What circumstances forced his release from imprisonment? Furthermore, why was Dr. Sychrava conspicuously absent from the Czech delegation to the U. N. Freedom of Information conference in Geneva after he had expressed confidence that he would attend the meeting? Why also did the Czech delegation protest vigorously the expression of gratitude voted Dr. Sychrava by the conference after his statement of principles for journalists had been read into the record? Could it be that freedom of the press in Czechoslovakia applies only to those practitioners who refrain from criticizing the local government borne by the Federal Government has decreased through the years.

Letters To The Editor

Berlin Horse Trade

Since the present serious and grave crisis over the Berlin blockade was precipitated by our disastrous, ill-considered plan to establish a centralized western German government at Frankfurt, wise statesmanship would dictate an honest admission of error and reversal of policy.

Our own interests demand that the 11 German states be welded into a western European unit as separate, independent entities. As such they can unite with western Europe militarily and economically under the Brussels Pact and the European Recovery Plan.

In the good old American horse trade tradition, we could profitably exchange our plan for a unified western government as a considerable concession to the Soviets in exchange for a discontinuance of the blockade.

In the interests of peace and harmony we could demonstrate even more native horse sense by exchanging our indisputable occupation rights in the western zones of Berlin for jetter defensible and strategic portions of Germany that were turned over to the Soviets after being conquered by our own American troops.

For humanitarian purposes, as well as any consideration of prestige, we should insist on an exchange of population according to the expressed will of the people in the areas affected.

District Sales Tax

Is a sales tax necessary for the District of Columbia? The burning question before the public is not that of the merits of the proposed tax; it is rather, from what equitable method of taxation would it be possible to meet the deficit that exists. Our income and personal property taxes are operating at a minimum of efficiency. The income tax is deficient principally because of the ease of evasion on the grounds of an established State residence. Why not a revised income tax, maintaining its present exemptions with a higher rate, which would include all those earning revenue within the District who have been domiciled here for a specific period? The present tax is outmoded, discriminatory and administratively impossible.

Observe our property tax—a "paper tax" in effect because of the inability of the present administration to adequately enforce its requirements. An expanded field force in this department, simplification of the tax form and a central, consolidated tax office with a cross index system would provide a considerable increase in revenue.

Another existing source of District revenue, which bears consideration before passing on to alternatives, is the Federal contribution. In spite of a steady increase in proportion of real property holdings and drain on the District resources, the proportionate share of the burden of local government borne by the Federal Government has decreased through the years.

Other possible taxes which might be considered are those on tourists—such as a 10 per cent tax on hotel bills (those billed on a daily or weekly basis), taxi fares, etc. Taxes on gadgets such as pinball machines or an increase in the liquor, cigarette or gasoline taxes might be considered preferable to a sales tax. Other reasonable sources might be an increase in the inheritance and gift tax rates and the establishment of a real property transfer tax.

All of the above suggestions are more justifiable than a sales tax, and would have an added

Wallace Coverage

Henry A. Wallace and his party assumed that the press and the radio would not give him a fair coverage. He wanted that accusation to stand because no doubt that would have brought him much sympathy which he is trying to stimulate for his cause. Working on that hypothesis, he rationalized his strange manner of dismissing questions. Denouncing nearly every reporter as a stooge was simply indicative of his political frustration.

But fortunately, The Washington Post, and several papers faithful to their duty toward their readers, have given Henry Wallace an objective (relatively speaking) coverage of the third party convention. This way I am sure their demand for political sympathy has been minimized and maybe they will now be less cynical and more positive.

"Freedom Shrieked"

In one of your editorials on July 21, you stated that: "There is no better evidence of the utter cynicism of the repressive regime that has taken over Czechoslovakia than the arrest of Dr. D. Lev Sychrava." After praising Dr. Sychrava as an uncommon patriot, a man with a passion for liberty and a gift of leadership, a victim of the Nazis, etc., the editorial went on as follows: "This is the sort of man that the Communist masters of Czechoslovakia have found it necessary to imprison after intimidation failed, the flower of Czechoslovakia, civilization's hope. Dr. Sychrava reportedly was arrested while attempting to flee to Germany, and his whereabouts is unknown."

I hate to throw cold water upon the magnificent flame of righteous wrath burning in your editorial writer and to disturb the mood of deep mourning in which your readers must have been plunged by his story about the allegedly trampled-down flower of Czechoslovakia, civilization's hope—but it so happens that the same mail that brought me the clipping of your editorial contained also a letter of Dr. Sychrava to one of his friends in New York. The letter is dated London, July 1, 1948, and says in part: "I arrived in London Saturday, June 26, 1948, by plane with a Czechoslovak passport extended in the normal way. It is the same passport on which I twice traveled to America. I am entirely safe and sound and getting ready for work."

Let me add that Dr. Sychrava had before been arrested by frontier guards while trying to leave the country secretly and illegally. You will certainly

Communist Challenge

The recent exposure of the Communist Party in America, and the arrest of a few Negroes in that group, is likely to be misunderstood and the subject of much generalization by the reading public.

Communism as a philosophy is not what the Negro wants to live by and under. On the average, he knows very little about what communism really is, except its over-propagandized idea of brotherhood and equality.

The intelligent Negro doesn't want to create a state of life which would be worse than that which is the present lot of too many. The misinformed of both races have become members, not because of what communism is, but because of what democracy is not.

Communism can be robbed of its false appeal if all men are given the right to live and work without circumscription and segregation, which too frequently blench our society. It is not a threat to America, but a challenge to the American way of life.

Police Consolidation

I read with interest your news item of July 21 on "County Police Station Consolidation—Opposed." I call attention to the fact that while Mr. Edward Smith of Galesville did lead the opposition, the other side was well represented and very favorable comment was made by Mr. Carol Lee of Edgewater with representatives speaking from Edgewater, Mayo, Turkey Point, Beverly Beach, Woodland Beach and Del Rio. We firmly believe that consolidation would improve the police protection in the whole county.

Police Consolidation

I agree that this would have happened to any person anywhere caught in an illegal attempt to cross the frontier secretly and without passport. Dr. Sychrava was not punished for his act, he was quickly released and his passport was extended in order to enable him to leave the country as a citizen in good standing.

These facts about Dr. Sychrava could have been easily checked by a simple telephone call to this Embassy. I admit that such a call would have deprived the writer of your editorial of a grand opportunity to display his deep concern about "freedom shrieking" but on the other hand, he would have spared himself and the readers of The Washington Post that kind of uneasiness which undoubtedly must accompany a re-reading of what he considered the "moral" of his story, namely that the case of Dr. Sychrava is a "prime example not only showing in glaring detail the nature of the tyranny that has been fastened on Czechoslovakia, but also proclaiming before the world that all the pious concern of the Communists about press freedom is nothing but a contemptible mockery."

Great as the temptation may be to call, in turn, the case of your editorial a prime example of how things in Czechoslovakia are presented by a majority of the press to the American people, I refrain from doing so, for, to be frank, it is by no means a prime example, it is but one in a multitude of similar cases.

The letter of Dr. Sychrava, from which I quoted a passage, is in my office and will be at the disposal of anybody wanting to check the facts.

Washington Calling

Lighter Skies

WHAT THIS country has gained during the past 10 days may not at first be evident. But it is nevertheless a very real gain.

To understand how important it is one need only contrast the attitudes of two weeks ago as reflected in the headlines and the present attitude. The change in the temperature is striking.

Two weeks ago we were getting inspired stories out of Berlin and Frankfurt of the most sensational and alarmist nature. Plans were being considered to force an armored train through the blockade. There would be a showdown.

The sources of these inspired reports were never identified. Presumably they came from military policymakers in Berlin whose patience had been worn down to the vanishing point in the long contest with Soviet stubbornness and hostility. They also may have been inspired by certain trigger-happy generals in the Air Force who sometimes talk altogether too freely about preventive wars.

Now the climate has changed. A meeting of top diplomats has been held in London to study a new approach to Moscow. Charles E. Bohlen, counselor, represented our State Department at that meeting. Reports from London make it plain that long and serious consideration was given to mapping out negotiations that would exhaust every possibility for peaceful settlement.

THE GAIN is on the side of our moral position before the world. While the trigger-happy and the irresponsible seem hardly aware of it, that position has a value at least equal to the mightiest modern armament.

Provocative talk from the United States was a priceless gift to the Soviet Union. It gave the Russians a tremendous advantage in the contest for western Europe. For the uneasy peoples who stand between the two giants—the U. S. A. and the USSR—such talk could seem only to be the perilous folly that in reality it was.

The tremors that ran through Paris, The Hague, Brussels and even London were visible in spite of the deliberate restraint imposed. Pressure from these sources may well have had something to do with the developments of the past 10 days.

Whatever the actuality of their ruthlessness in power politics behind the scenes, the Russians are intensely conscious of their position before the world. While the propaganda of simple assertion goes a certain distance, it cannot wholly ignore events. It would be of the first importance to the Russians to have some substance behind their cry that America was to blame if a conflict should come.

Now with the path opened for new negotiations agreed to by responsible policy-makers in Washington and London, the response of Moscow will be studied with breathless interest to see whether the Soviet really desires peace. That is as it should be.

IN ANOTHER related part of the world the moral position of the United States is of vital consequence. That is in Greece. News dispatches from Athens recently told of the possibility of a "service government," which means, in reality, dictatorship by a military man. That possibility was first foreshadowed in this column on the basis of reports on the worsening situation in Greece.

The suggestion of a "service government" in the event that the aged Premier Sophocles resigns comes along with other dispatches telling of the continuing execution of Communists, men and women, for aiding the guerrillas. Here is a situation that does not match with America's professed intentions in Greece.

It is impossible to avoid at least a modicum of responsibility. A new administrator of American aid to Greece, who is also Ambassador, is taking over in Athens. Henry F. Grady, who has proved his abilities elsewhere many times over, has a chance to make a new start.

Even though his tenure may be short, with the possibility of a new Administration in Washington in January, he can begin in a new direction, making it abundantly clear to the politicians in Athens that a dictatorship, legal or otherwise, will not be tolerated. In fact, Grady cannot afford to wait. The situation is deteriorating too rapidly for delay.

Too often we fail to realize how concentrated is the gaze of people everywhere on our slightest act. They measure our slightest word. The nation that is the sole possessor of the atomic bomb cannot afford to be wrong before the court of world opinion.

"Dream Project"

On page 18 of your issue of July 23 you treat us to a diagram of the Washington Gas Light Co.'s "Dream Project." Thanks for informing the helpless public about the gas company's so-called dreams, no doubt intended all for the public good.

The dream-buildings look like barracks, but that is only to be expected. My quarrel is with the conception that covers around 75 per cent of the ground with these barracks, leaving such inadequate open space that the ground-floor apartments would be in darkness all day. What does the gas company think this is, New York?

Stake In Berlin

A Communication

MUCH confusion seems to exist about developments in Germany. After three long years of waiting for the execution of an agreed policy toward Germany, the three Western occupying powers have reluctantly come to the conclusion that they can wait no longer, and under the recent London agreements are proceeding to organize the three western zones on a new basis and to integrate them into the Marshall Plan.

This new policy, this new legal basis for moving toward a solution of the German problem, was made necessary by two developments. The first was the continued failure of the Soviet Union to carry out the Potsdam agreement, and its unwillingness in two conferences of the Foreign Ministers to budge an inch from its negative position. The second was the initiation of the European Recovery Program which requires for its success the rehabilitation of the German economy and its integration into the whole European Recovery Program.

IF WE had allowed the western zones of Germany to continue to wallow in economic and social despair, we not only risked a real crisis in Germany, but we would have consigned the Marshall Plan to failure right at the start. This was universally recognized in Congress. Furthermore, we were at the end of the rope so far as continuing huge relief appropriations for our zones in Germany were concerned. We had waited for the development of an agreed four-power policy in Germany which all powers would observe, and paid through the nose in doing so.

At long last the French agreed to a new approach, and as progress was being made to bring order out of chaos, to get the Germans off our backs, and to restore a normal European economy, the Russians intensified the Berlin crisis by imposing the blockade. They did this because they do not want western Europe to continue its present recovery.

They desire a highly centralized German government under Communist domination. They hope to extend to all of Germany the tight police state they have established in their own zone. Meeting with insurmountable obstacles in the form of genuine support for the program of the Western powers, the Soviet, according to an old pattern, have resorted to forceful measures.

NOW some timid souls preaching Russian cooperation want us to withdraw from Berlin and, as they think, avoid any further danger of a clash with Soviet power. These cooperators, forgetting all the milestones along the difficult road we have to travel in Germany, want us now to abandon our efforts just at the point where we are beginning to see the light. Having successfully launched our currency reform, having finally secured French agreement to a new program in Germany, having taken the first steps to develop a governmental framework within which the western German economy could be guided and controlled on a reasonably efficient and responsible basis, we would be worse than fools if we gave up our rights and position in Berlin and thus jeopardized our progress in the western zones.

It is not true that a withdrawal from Berlin would strengthen the position of our projected western government. Such a withdrawal would terrify every responsible German leader who is now laboring to rebuild a workable governmental edifice in the western zones, in addition to sacrificing to the tender mercies of the Russians all those thousands of courageous Berliners who have been the bulwark of opposition to the western spread of communism.

WE HAVE already given up too much to the Russians, but it is not merely stubbornness which should motivate us now. We are making progress in organizing Germany according to principles which are the soundest we can find under the present circumstances. It would be the sheerest folly to throw away everything we have been able to salvage from three years of inter-Axis bickering.

If the Russians want to avoid a serious situation in their own zone which might have serious repercussions on their satellite states and even upon themselves, if they want to avoid any further loss of prestige in Germany, let them find a way to reactivate the control council and end the blockade. Without our accepting any of the measures we have been called upon to take to rescue western Germany from collapse, we could then agree to discuss the entire German problem in a conference of the Foreign Ministers if we were given assurances in advance that such a conference would not be like the ones in Moscow and London.

Meanwhile, let's don't be so solicitous for the Russians and the Poles and even the French that we forget there is an American interest and even an American policy which has been worked out during the occupation. Mr. Byrnes' Stuttgart speech should not be forgotten. Incidentally, there is very close agreement between the British and ourselves indicating that we are not pursuing a selfish nationalistic and warlike policy. Socialist Britain seems to understand the ways of the Communists better than we do, and I have not heard a single responsible Briton urge a withdrawal from Berlin.

THE ISSUE is not Frankfurt or Berlin. Both cities have their part to play in Germany's reintegration into peaceful international society and neither of them should be abandoned to Communist domination. Frankfurt without Berlin as both an outpost and a bridge could not make its contribution to European recovery. Frankfurt can be the democratic amoeba out of Berlin of which a new all-zone government could grow and develop just as the new western German government has grown out of the democratic and federalistic developments in the American zone.

Berlin is now even a more powerful symbol than when the control council stuttered its few enunciations to the statute book. It has developed a new spirit of freedom and it remains a necessary center for the unification of Germany.

The Russians long ago divided Germany and they have tried ever since to make their type of rule predominate everywhere. They have not even succeeded in Berlin where we have guaranteed civil liberties and provided security. Now that we have finally taken necessary measures to protect and develop the western zones, in effect to counteract what the Russians did more than two years ago in their own zone, there should be no retreat howsoever much our action upsets the Russians.

The present Berlin crisis is a nervous rash like the shingles which will disappear or grow worse depending on how calmly and firmly we face the underlying causes. In my own opinion it is necessary for us to hold our position firmly at all costs. To do otherwise would jeopardize the whole structure and accomplishments of the postwar period of occupation and ruin the Marshall Plan.

Firm U. S. Policy in Berlin Has Heavy Popular Backing

By George Gallup

Princeton, N. J., July 29.—What parties see eye-to-eye on that polio decision United States diplomats and occupation authorities make in the present crisis in Germany, a poll of American people on the Berlin issue produces new evidence of overwhelming support for a "tough" policy toward Soviet Russia.

In a Nation-wide survey just completed three days ago, the Institute asked this question of representative voters in all 48 States: "Do you think United States should stay in Berlin, even if it means war with Russia—or should the United States give up Berlin to the Russians?"

The national answers:

Stay in Berlin.....82%
Give up Berlin.....11%
No opinion.....9%

The voters of this country want peace, but in every poll taken by the Institute in this field, the people have been shown to believe that the road to peace lies in a firm handling of our relations with the Russians.

For instance, in today's poll the principal reason given by those voters who want to see us stay in Berlin is that there is more chance of avoiding war with Russia by a firm policy than by a policy of appeasement. "If we give in," says one voter whose views are typical of the majority, "then Russia will increase her demands."

Those voters who want to see us get out of Berlin take the view that the Berlin issue could touch off a new war and that war must be avoided even if we lose a little face.

In the words of Secretary Marshall, America "will not be coerced or intimidated in any way.... At the same time we will proceed to invoke every possible resource of negotiation and diplomatic procedure to reach an acceptable solution to avoid the tragedy of war for the world."

Voters in each of the major occupational groups:

Stay in Berlin	Give up Berlin	No Opinion
Prof. and Bus. 85%	8%	7%
White Collar..... 80	11	9
Farmer..... 80	11	9
Manual Workers 78	12	10

World Government on Lines Of Marshall Plan Is Urged

Paris, July 29 (U.P.)—Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, urged today a "Marshall Plan government" of the world, with foreign currencies and foreign security tied to the American dollar and the American Army command.

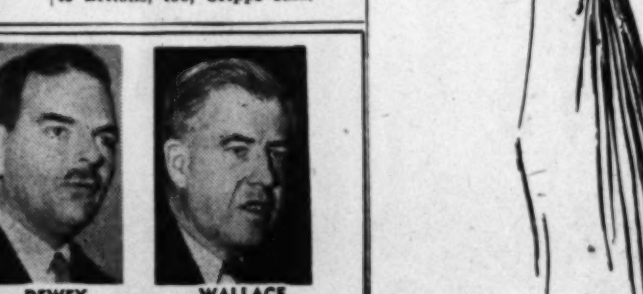

Addressing the American Club of Paris, McCormick said the Philippines could be a model for future relations of nations with the United States. The same, he said, might soon happen in Japan. "Certain it is that we will not continue to pour money into Europe without regulating its currencies, or continue to protect it militarily without directing its military forces," McCormick said, adding that this was the crux of his whole statement.

McCormick suggested other nations could continue to run their own affairs, as the Philippines do, subject to American financial and military direction.

"That may be the coming world government," he said.

McCormick advanced this idea as the next best alternative to taking parts of the British commonwealth into the American republic as states.

Both labor and conservative speakers welcomed the idea after Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps reassured the Commons that the proposed Anglo-American industrial council would exchange "know-how" on a two-way basis. Americans would listen to Britons, too, Cripps said.

Dewey And The Special Session

AT THE Republican caucus after President Harry S. Truman's special session message, Sen. Robert A. Taft, with his accustomed frankness, described the special session strategy favored by his former rival, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. He had talked to Dewey on the telephone, Taft said, and Dewey had stated his opinion that an immediate adjournment would be "unwise."

Dewey was all for a short session, but he felt that the President's proposals should be at least briefly considered in the appropriate committees. As this is written, it is uncertain whether the Dewey version of the most appropriate Republican response to Truman's challenge will be adopted. Certain of the House leaders, including Speaker Joseph Martin, Majority Leader Charles Halleck, and such weighty figures as Leo E. Allen of the Rules Committee and Jesse Wolcott of Banking and Currency, have not wanted even committee hearings on the President's proposals. They favored merely listening to the President's message in glum silence, issuing rebuttals to the press, and bowing out of Washington immediately with what grace they could muster.

A small Republican minority would actually take some action on the measures proposed by Truman, especially housing, even if that meant a session lasting several weeks. The Dewey strategy is a compromise between these extremes, and at the moment of writing it seems likely that it will be adopted by the Republicans. Whether it is adopted or not, the expedient Dewey recommended to the congressional Republicans is interesting in what it reveals of Dewey's assessment of the situation.

ON THE one hand, Dewey was astute enough to see that an immediate adjournment, lacking even the rather empty gesture of committee hearings, would not sit well with the country. It would suggest that the Republican Congress refused even to admit the existence of the housing and price problems.

On the other hand, when he emphasized in his telephone conversation with Taft that the session should be short, Dewey clearly had in mind the meaning to his own campaign of a prolonged and bitter battle between Truman and the Republican Congress. The attention of the country would then have been focused on the comparative merits of Truman and Dewey. No prospect could please Dewey less.

Therefore a short, perfunctory session, in which the Administration would be given an opportunity to state its case for the record, but in which no action would be taken, seemed the best of a bad bargain. Even so, in one sense, it is not a very good bargain.

Dewey and his cohorts will argue during the campaign that the special session was nothing but a political maneuver, in which serious legislation could not be undertaken, and that such legislation must be executed by an effective, rather than a politically and morally bankrupt Administration. But Truman will certainly hammer away at the Republican refusal to deal with housing and prices.

The Truman strategists intend particularly to make hay with Dewey's phrase about the special session being a "frightful imposition" on Congress. There will be much talk about the "frightful imposition" on the veterans who have to live with their mothers-in-law, and the "frightful imposition" on the housewives who have to pay a dollar for a pound of hamburger.

THIS LINE of attack is by no means ineffective. Thus it seems probable that the special session will cost the Republicans votes. It should help Democratic candidates, especially in the big city areas, whatever strategy the Republicans may eventually adopt. Yet it still does not seem at all probable that the special session maneuver could beat Dewey and elect Truman. And in a curious way, the maneuver is likely in the end to help Dewey in his task of riveting tight Administration control of Congress next winter. This is so simply because the special session call may well prevent the election of an unmanageable Republican majority.

Dewey must control Congress. He must control Congress essentially because he favors, in more moderate form, much of the legislation which Truman has proposed. All this legislation, even the mild Taft-sponsored housing bill, is anathema to the Martin-Halleck-Allen-Wolcott junta in the House. These men and their friends will have to be induced to shut their eyes and swallow down a good deal of moderate social legislation, which will taste like poison to them, if Dewey is to develop a coherent legislative program. And they can only be induced to do so if Dewey's control of Congress is well-nigh absolute.

With the prestige of the first Republican President in 16 years, with the immense patronage at his command, and with his own well-oiled machine working in high gear, Dewey should be quite capable of persuading Martin and his friends to see things the Dewey way, at least for a couple of years. But the job will be a great deal easier without a whopping big Republican majority. For huge majorities, as Franklin Roosevelt learned to his sorrow, have a way of straying off the party reservation. Small, tightly knit majorities are far more conscious of party loyalty and far more amenable to party discipline. Thus one curious result of Harry Truman's desperate maneuvers may well be to make Tom Dewey's job a good deal easier next year.

MacArthur No-Strike Policy Makes U. S. Labor Deputy Quit

Tokyo, July 29 (U.P.)—Paul S. Stanchfield, deputy United States labor chief in Japan, today joined his boss, James H. Killen, in resigning to protest Gen. Douglas MacArthur's new labor policy banning strikes by Japan's 1,842,000 unionized government employees.

"In view of Mr. Killen's decision to leave the labor division and in view of the circumstances that led up to that decision, I also plan to return to the United States, and I hope to do so at the same time as Killen," Stanchfield said.

Killen, vice president of the AFL Pulp and Papermill Workers' International Union in the United States, quit after charging the new policy denied government employees the right of collective bargaining.

The resignations came after MacArthur wrote Premier Hiroshi Ashida suggesting that Japan ban strikes by government employees.

A special session of the Japanese cabinet was held today, but it broke up without reaching any decision on MacArthur's letter.

A "wildcat" teachers' strike throughout Japan touched off a government crisis after MacArthur's letter.

Coventry Debates

Did Godiva Ride Astride, Is Question

Coventry, England, July 29 (AP).—Lady Godiva was naked, all right, but did she ride her horse side-saddle or astride through Coventry's streets 900 years ago?

That question came up because of two paintings hanging side by side in the city council chamber—a century-old masterpiece by Landseer showing Lady Godiva riding side-saddle, decorously, and a more modern work by the Hon. John Collier, in which she is depicted astride her horse.

Leaders of parties of school children who visit the council think Collier's painting should be taken down. It is not proper, they said, for children to see a naked woman astride a horse.

They say Lady Godiva was a modest person—she founded an abbey, didn't she?—and therefore would not have ridden astride, even though everyone in town promised not to look.

Supporters of Collier, however, said side-saddle riding did not become popular until 300 years after Lady Godiva.

Only one person besides Lady Godiva knew the answer, history says—Tom, who has become famous through the ages as Peeping Tom. And he didn't report details.

Lady Godiva was the wife of the wicked Earl Leofric of Mercia, who said he would reduce usurious rents only if she rode naked through the city.

She did it. But side-saddle or astride?

Petition Filed In $350,000 Ellis Estate

The late Wade H. Ellis, Washington lawyer, left an estate valued at more than $350,000, according to a petition for probate of his will filed in District Court yesterday.

He left the bulk of the estate to his wife, Mrs. Desha C. Ellis, who was named executor of the estate along with his former law partner, Woodson P. Houghton.

The petition pointed out that the estate is in addition to various joint insurance policies, annuities, bank deposits and securities held with his wife and therefore not requiring administration.

Dated July 10, 1936, the will left bequests totaling $82,500, to be paid out of the late Mr. Ellis's estate, Rippon Lodge, in Prince William County, Va.

Raymond L. Hubbard, his chauffeur, was given $5000. His library was left to Washington and Lee University, where he was graduated in 1889.

Mr. Ellis was a former special assistant to the Attorney General during the Administration of Theodore Roosevelt. He died July 4 at his home at 1440 Massachusetts ave. n.w.

Boy, 4, Calls Out Fire Department

Danbury, Conn., July 29 (AP).—An unidentified boy who appeared to be no more than 4 years old, had quite a time for himself here today.

He turned in a fire alarm from a box in the center of Danbury's congested factory district, bringing three fire companies to the scene. Then he gave the alarm box hook another yank which brought out all of Danbury's firefighting apparatus together with 150 firemen.

The boy turned in the second alarm, firemen said, while he was struggling in the arms of a fireman who saw him standing near the instrument.

"He slapped the fireman in the face with one hand and turned in the alarm with the other," they said.

During the excitement the boy disappeared.

4-Nation Economic Union Taking Shape

Quito, Ecuador, July 29 (AP).—A proposed economic and customs union of Colombia, Ecuador, Panama and Venezuela began to take definite shape at the grand Colombia economic conference today.

A committee tentatively approved a "gradual and progressive" economic union, a customs union and adoption of uniform measures regarding production, consumption and transportation.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney trouble flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Wells, Me., July 29 (AP).—The farming gentry of this 308-year-old town was up in arms today because a New Yorker was building tourist cabins on top of the graves of Revolutionary War heroes and Indian fighters.

Selectman Archibald Wormwood said townfolk were determined to stop William Burns from adding to the three cabins he has built in the village burying ground.

"About 25 headstones have been uprooted from graves and tossed behind a rubbish heap," Wormwood said.

"Why, they got one cabin almost straddling the grave of Lieut. Jonathan Hammond, a Revolutionary War hero who helped make our country free 'fore the Indians scalped him," he said indignantly.

Burns was bewildered. He said he failed to see any harm in his tourist haven amid the tombs. He said the selectmen knew he planned to build cabins when they sold him the property several months ago.

Pay Raise Offered In Univis Strike; Picketing Is Quiet

Dayton, Ohio, July 29 (AP).—The fight suddenly went out of the 85-day old Univis Lens Co. strike today, but Dayton watched nervously for Friday's 6:30 a. m. (EST) union mass meeting outside the plant.

Active but orderly picketing took the place of fist and club swinging this morning when the plant opened its doors. For the first time since Monday's back-to-work call nobody was hurt, arrested or given anything worse than a bad mouthing.

Meanwhile, the company made an effort to end the strike by granting all production employees an 11-cent-an-hour pay raise, with comparable boosts for white-collar workers.

Officials of the striking United Electrical Workers, Local 768, made no comment except one asked, "Why didn't they do that May 5 (when the strike started)?"

Since the union's main goal now is regaining its status as bargaining agent—the National Labor Relations Board decreed it after an election last Friday—the pay increase was not expected to change its plans greatly.

Medals for Veterans

Members of the National Capital Chapter No. 2 of Disabled American Veterans will receive service medals for European, Asiatic and Pacific duty at a meeting of the group today at 8:30 p. m. in the Heinrich's Brewery, 26th and Water sts. n.w. Veterans should bring their discharge papers.

Strike Beset Manila Paper Quits Publishing

Manila, July 29 (AP).—Counsel for the strike beset Manila Evening News today announced the management's decision to dissolve the corporation and discontinue publication of the city's largest afternoon newspaper.

Don Ramon Rocas was publisher of the newspaper whose 24 editorial workers went on strike July 23 protesting dismissal of Cipriano Cid as editor. Cid was president of the Philippine Newspaper Guild.

Mariano Albert, counsel for the newspaper management, said that "in view of the fact the employees are dissatisfied and the enterprise is suffering losses, the corporation decided to dissolve and discontinue publication."

A total of 105 employees was affected. Established in 1945, the paper at its peak had 48,000 circulation.

Pals of Slain Manufacturer Questioned

Chicago, July 29 (AP).—Detectives today questioned poker pals of Nathan Gumbin, millionaire paper manufacturer who was murdered by gunmen last night as he drove home for his fifty-fifth birthday party.

Gumbin, part-owner of the General Fiber Co. and the General Carton Co., was killed as he stopped his limousine at a red light. A shotgun almost tore his head off.

The Chicago Sun and Times, in a copyrighted story, said it was "informed" that Gumbin probably was slain by an underworld syndicate.

The newspaper said it learned labor racketeers were extorting huge sums from Gumbin to "insure" labor peace at his plant.

Baby Beaten to Death; Boys, 7 and 11, Are Held

Moorhead, Minn., July 29 (AP).—County Attorney G. L. Dosland said today a 2-year-old girl found dead in her crib had apparently been beaten to death with a hoe by two small boys.

The child was Joyce Halvorson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Halvorson.

Dosland said questioning of other children in the family indicated the child was beaten "because she wouldn't go to sleep."

Dosland said two boys, 7 and 11, cause she wouldn't go to sleep. The parents were absent at the county jail and that Mr. and Mrs. time. There are 11 other children Halvorson also are being held.

$4,509,170 Set as Goal In Area Chest Campaign

Executive Board
Accepts Figure
As Minimum Need
For '49 Operations

A record peacetime fund-raising goal of $4,509,170 for the Washington area's 1949 Community Chest drive was set yesterday.

The Community Chest Federation's executive committee voted unanimously to accept that goal figure as submitted by its budget committee as the "bare minimum" to continue community and hospitalization services next year.

Date for starting the drive will be announced later, but the fund campaign will be held this fall.

Goal Held Minimum
Community Chest officials from Washington, Alexandria and Montgomery, Prince Georges and Fairfax Counties all insisted that anything less than the $4,509,170 would be insufficient to continue community services.

Col. Chauncey G. Parker, director of administration of the World Bank, and general chairman of the fund drive, pointed out that that figure represented an $800,000 cut in funds requested.

J. Harold Stehman, first vice president of the federation and president of the Arlington County Community Chest, who presided at the meeting held at the American Security & Trust Co., declared: "All we can do is put the need in the goal. Then—if we fail—it is not our failure but the failure of the community."

Includes Hospitalization

Stehman pointed out that the goal this year includes an $850,000 outlay for hospitalization services for the indigent and semi-indigent. Included in the drive to prevent 14 area hospitals from conducting a separate fund drive this year.

Marcellus Shield, chairman of the federation's subcommittee on hospitalization, said, "I think we should take into consideration what a dollar will do in 1949, compared to what the dollar would buy in 1946, '47 and '48."

Powell School

Transfer

Is Approved

The District of Columbia Board of Education yesterday approved transfer of Powell Junior High School—pupils to Central High School so Powell can be used as new quarters for Bell Vocational High School.

C. Melvin Sharpe, board member, said six members of the board signed a committee report recommending the change, effective September 13, the opening day of the fall school term. Three other board members are out of the city.

The shift was proposed by School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning. A public hearing on the proposal was held Tuesday.

Sharpe said Bell Vocational students will move into the Powell building as soon as the building can be readied for them. The date remains indefinite, he said.

Rutledge Not Injured

In Colorado Collision

Justice Wiley Rutledge of the United States Supreme Court escaped injury Tuesday night in an automobile collision that hospitalized two persons in Denver, Colo., according to word received here yesterday.

The jurist's daughter, Miss Mary Lou Rutledge, said last night she had word that her father was uninjured, but had no details of the accident. She said her father is vacationing in Colorado.

The Associated Press reported that an expectant mother was recovering from cuts and bruises while her husband suffered three rib fractures in the accident.

Faces Grand Jury Army Captain Charged With Lashing Son

ANDRE HOFFMAN

An Army Medical Corps captain was accused yesterday in court of gagging his 10-year-old son to silence his screams and then lashing him with an electric light cord.

As a result of evidence obtained by police against Capt. Franklin G. Hoffman of 217 Gallatin st. n.w., these actions resulted yesterday:

1. A warrant for Hoffman's arrest on a charge of cruelty to children was signed by Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court.

2. The United States Attorney's office presented the case directly to the grand jury.

The United States Attorney's office said police from the Sixth Precinct went to the Hoffman home Wednesday night after neighbors called and said they feared Hoffman's son, Andre Rene Hoffman, had been subjected to a beating.

Police found the boy locked in his basement room. The parents were absent. Police said the boy told them his mouth had been stuffed with cotton and then taped shut with adhesive tape.

Police said marks which could have been made by adhesive tape were on the youngster's mouth. They said also there were marks on his wrists, apparently where they had been bound.

Police said the boy's back and buttocks were covered with welts and bruises.

After spending the night at the Receiving Home, the boy was taken yesterday to police headquarters where photographs of his injuries were made. He was also questioned by Sgt. Frances Bird of the Women's Bureau and then appeared before the grand jury.

The boy's mother and father did not make an appearance before the grand jury. However, Assistant United States Attorney Robert Short said an attorney representing the father had notified the United States Attorney's office that the captain will appear voluntarily in Municipal Court today for arraignment.

The Washington Post was unable to reach either Captain or Mrs. Hoffman for comment.

A physician, Hoffman is assigned to the physical standards division of the Medical Corps.

Neighbors in the 200 block of Gallatin st. n.w., said the Hoffman family had lived there since last September.

One neighbor said the boy was frequently heard to scream and shriek when he was beaten.

"They always insisted he was a problem child," said the neighbor. According to the neighbors, the boy had twice run away from home. About a month ago, they said, he disappeared and a day later was picked up by police in Union Station.

His most recent disappearance, they added, was last Monday when he visited a home in the neighborhood, said his parents were out of town and spent the night there.

Custody Sought After 6 Years

Young Mother Denied Child

She Gave to Her Half-Sister

A young mother, who gave her illegitimate daughter to her half-sister 5 days after the child was born, was denied custody of the girl in District Court yesterday.

Justice Alexander Holtzoff dismissed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus through which the mother, now married, sought to win custody of the girl, now 6 years old.

The child, who believes the aunt to be her mother and the mother to be her aunt, played with a friend in the corridor, unaware of the tearful hearing being conducted inside the courtroom.

The mother testified that she was only 14 years old and unable to provide for her daughter when the child was born. She married two years ago and her husband is

Sex Perverts Invade D. C., House Told

Rep. Grant Offers
Bill for Merger
Of Metropolitan
And Park Police

The Nation's Capital has become "the haven of sexual perverts and criminals" who are "converging upon Washington in ever-increasing numbers."

That was the indictment of the District made yesterday on the floor of the House by Representative George McInvalle Grant (D., Ala.).

The Alabama, a member of Congress and resident of the District for the past 10 years, presented his description of the Nation's Capital in introducing a bill to merge the Park Police into the Metropolitan Police Department.

The amalgamation of the two forces, Representative Grant declared, would at least be a move towards making the District's parks safer for children and women.

Grant, father of two children, said he was outraged by the rape-slashing of 11-year-old Carol Bardwell, 1635 Webster ave. n.w., in Rock Creek Park the Sunday afternoon of June 27.

Since Congress adjourned in mid-June, Grant told his colleagues, another "brutal attack" took place in the Capital, "one of a long series of such attacks here."

The Alabama charged that it is "dangerous for one to walk alone here at any hour of the day or night."

Criminals have become so bold in Washington, he added, "that they no longer wait for the cover of darkness to commit their atrocious crimes but carry them out in the broad, open daylight."

Grant said he did not mean to censure or condemn either "unmannered" police force. "They have worked hard under great handicaps, but there is divided authority," he explained. "Law enforcement should be under one command."

He urged that the police forces be combined into one should be paid good wages and granted shorter hours of work.

"The conditions that exist here are a shame and disgrace to a civilized community," Grant asserted. "This Congress must demand that this condition be cleaned up and that it be done now. The adoption of this bill alone will not do it, but it will make a good start."

Burns in Mystery

Blast Prove Fatal

Miss Esther Williams, a 43-year-old Government worker with Federal Airways, died at Arlington Hospital early today of burns suffered in a mysterious blast in her apartment kitchen July 25.

The blast, which wrecked the kitchen, occurred in her first-floor apartment at 349 N. Glebe rd., Arlington. A neighbor, Mrs. Eugene Worley, wife of the Texas Congressman, led her from the shattered apartment.

Empowered to Make Contracts

Three District department heads were designated by the Commissioners yesterday as "contracting officers" and empowered to enter into contracts on behalf of the District.

They are Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst, Director of Construction Archie Hutson, and Harold A. Kemp, director of Sanitary Engineering.

The Commissioners' order gives them authority to execute contracts after final approval by the city heads. It was issued in conjunction with a new, streamlined contract procedure which went into effect July 1.

Three alternate contracting officers also were named. They are Municipal Architect Merrel A. Coe (alternate for Hutson), Deputy Highway Director J. N. Robertson (for Whitehurst), and Ellwood Johnson, deputy director of sanitary engineering (for Kemp).

Man Swallows Ring as Police Arrest Him

Fluoroscope Shows
Jewel in Stomach;
Two Held on Charges

It isn't every day that a man's diet makes him an object of special police concern.

But then it isn't every day that a man swallows a $350 diamond ring.

Such a man is Stafford D. Lowry, 20, of 808 Xenia st. se., according to police.

Lowry developed his expensive taste Wednesday night, police said, after Joseph R. Cipolari, 24, of 639 S. 20th st., Arlington, Va., had picked him up at about 10:30 p. m. at 14th and H sts. n.w.

The pair drove to Rock Creek Park, police said, where Lowry indicated he had a gun in his pocket and forced Cipolari to hand over his wrist watch and diamond ring.

According to police, Lowry then ordered his victim to drive him to Lafayette Park. When Lowry got out of the car, Cipolari hailed a passing police car and had Lowry arrested.

Police said Lowry took them to a spot in Rock Creek Park where he had buried the wrist watch and then confessed that he had swallowed the ring.

At Gallinger Hospital, Lowry was examined under a fluoroscope. Sure enough, there was the ring.

Police said Lowry will be charged with robbery and sodomy after the ring has been recovered. Cipolari has already been booked for sodomy.

Man Seized in Store

Is Held for Grand Jury

A man who reportedly attempted to escape through a large refrigerator when surprised in a store earlier in the day was held yesterday for grand jury action on a housebreaking charge.

The man, identified as Ollie N. Berry, 42, of 2719 Georgia ave. n.w., was ordered held under $5000 bond by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Pvt. John P. Gerardi of the Tenth Precinct testified he discovered Berry inside Little Butcher Shop No. 2, 2600 Georgia ave. n.w., when he was checking the door about 1 a. m. Berry told him, the officer said, he was "taking inventory."

The officer said he fired one shot when Berry scrambled into a large refrigerator and emerged through another door. In the ensuing chase about the store the policeman injured his arm in a fall before he made the capture.

The policeman was treated at Garfield Hospital for a possible fractured right arm.

Assailant Flees After

Girl, 11, Bites His Arm

An 11-year-old girl, en route yesterday morning to a Bible class, was grabbed by the arm by a man who dashed from the woods in the 3300 block of Pennsylvania ave. se.

She was en route to Ryland Methodist Church, Pennsylvania and Branch aves. se., about 8:45 a. m., police said. The assailant fled back into the woods after the girl bit him on the arm, they said.

The child described her attacker as a dark-skinned Negro.

$5000 Gift Will Provide Outings for Many Children

The station wagons loaded with cheering youngsters bound for Camp Happyland, the Salvation Army's summer camp, were just about to pull away from the curb. Each vehicle was filled with excited youngsters.

Two children rushed up. They were out of breath and anxiety was written in every line of their young faces.

"It's all right, Captain," one of them shouted, "we can go to camp—Daddy's in jail."

It developed that the mother of these two children agreed to allow them to go but their father would not give his permission.

With the two rolled down to Triangle, Virginia, and then into the Government owned Choptawmaw Preserve. The immaculate cabins, mess hall, miniature lake, and perfect camping grounds are rented to the Salvation Army for $500 a year. Yesterday's group was the third of this season's camping program which will run through August.

Arriving at Camp Happyland, the children were weighed, given medical inspection, and turned loose in the cool little lake.

Gladys Swarthout

Soloist Tonight

Gladys Swarthout will make her third Washington appearance this year as soloist at tonight's Watergate concert, the final concert of the season. It begins at 8:15 p. m.

Since her appearance in Constitution Hall in May, Miss Swarthout has sung for the Republican Convention in Philadelphia, for the President of Venezuela and for the President of the United States.

Her singing before the two presidents was on the occasion of the unveiling of a statue of Simon Bolivar on July 5 in Bolivar, Md.

Tonight's concert will include the Washington premiere of Jerome Kern's "Showboat Scenario." Under the terms of Kern's will, all performance royalties from this work go to charity. Proceeds from the local premiere will be sent to Mrs. Kern in Hollywood to be donated to the charity of her choice.

Transit to Seek

'Fringe' Auto Lot

Bus Run Approved

Capital Transit Co. will ask the Public Utilities Commission Monday to approve proposed routing for shuttle buses to link "fringe" parking lots with the downtown business area, company officials revealed yesterday.

The move will be one of the final steps toward setting up the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency's program to provide fringe parking for 1350 autos.

Twenty-five business leaders agreed Tuesday to set up a corporation to lease parking lots for the program.

As planned by MVPA, the program would enable drivers to park at any of three fringe lots as long as they wish and obtain a shuttle bus ride downtown and back at a total cost of 40 cents.

Park Employee Raises Start D. C. Deficit

164 Aides Affected
By Plan Which Would Put Budget in Red

A Comptroller General's decision granting pay increases to 164 employees of National Capital Parks, expected today, will mark the beginning of a District deficit for the current fiscal year, city budget officials said yesterday.

The order, which officials at the Comptroller General's office said was being typed late yesterday, is expected to reach the Commissioners this morning.

The Comptroller General's office declined to release any details concerning it, but District Building sources said they'd been told informally that it would grant the $330-a-year Federal increase to NCP employees, who are paid from District funds.

It would cost the District $54,120 more a year and put the city's 1949 budget slightly in the red, budget officials said.

Also expected today is the Comptroller General's reply to a July 20 letter from the Commissioners, which sought a ruling on whether 516 District employees paid in whole or in part with Federal funds are eligible for a pay increase.

The Commissioners also asked if the pay raise would apply to employees independent boards, whose workers are paid from fees or earnings of the boards; employees paid jointly by District and Federal "matching" funds; and employees paid from District Highway and Water Funds, which are supported by both D. C. and Federal appropriations.

Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler said he would wait to see the two orders before making any economy recommendations to the Commissioners.

The Comptroller General ruled earlier this month that 15 employees of National Capital Park and Planning Commission and 134 at National Zoological Park, who also are paid by the District, are entitled to the raise.

Noah is back in town. And, surprisingly, the Zoo population has not been increased by a single importation.

Unfortunately, for Zoo fans, in breezy, chain-smoking Doc returns from a safari through a dozen European zoos not by ship but by plane.

However, he did report yesterday that he's expecting shipment of dozens of animal rarities.

Rep. Dirksen To Try Again On District Pay Boost

U. S. Treasury Loan
Would Finance It;
Retroactivity to July 1 Is Planned

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The proposed District employees pay raise, given up for dead in the Senate, yesterday received a slight hope-reviving injection in the House.

Representative Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, introduced a bill to grant local Government employees wage increases ranging from $200 for teachers to $330 a year for others with funds to be provided by a $5,800,000 United States Treasury loan.

Dirksen expressed confidence, following a session of the House Republican conference late yesterday, that his bill would be passed quickly in the House, and would be accepted as a compromise in the Senate before the special session was ended.

Halleck Less Optimistic

Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.), however, was not so optimistic.

He pointed out that the minority conference had decided the House would take up during the special session only such legislation as could be disposed of quickly, on an emergency basis, without the expenditure of any substantial sum of money.

It would have to be determined, Halleck said, whether or not the Dirksen pay raise bill met conditions of the policy laid down by the majority conference.

There was no indication, however, from Senate leaders that the upper chamber would recess from its decision of Wednesday to take up no matters except those of a national emergency nature.

Dirksen's bill would make the pay raises for local municipal workers retroactive to July 1, the date Federal employees were given a $330 a year cost-of-living increase.

The measure specifically increases the salaries of local classified Civil Service workers, Metropolitan police, Park police, White House police and District firemen by $330 a year. Teachers get $200 a year. All other municipal workers would be given raises up to $330 a year, according to the direction of the District Commissioners.

The Dirksen bill would lift the "Cain amendment" from the Federal Pay Raise Act of last session. The amendment barred any local municipal pay raises until adequate revenue was made available by Congress.

The adequate revenue referred specifically to a 2 per cent sales tax bill which had already passed the House, but which was stymied in the Senate, and was finally blocked by a one-man filibuster conducted by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), who objected to the sales tax.

Under provisions of the Dirksen bill, the local Commissioners are directed to borrow from the Treasury as much as necessary to meet the pay raise. The sum of $5,800,000 has been estimated as the cost of the pay boost. The money would be repaid, at the direction of Congress, without interest.

Dirksen yesterday called a meeting of his District Committee for Monday to get the ball rolling on his plan.

Autopsy Slated

Today in Death

Of Gordon Glasco

An autopsy will be performed today by Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg on the body of Gordon T. Glasco, 47, formerly of Hotel Roosevelt, who died at Sibley Hospital shortly after noon yesterday.

Dr. Rosenberg reported the body shows a bruise over the left eye and abrasions on the knee.

According to police, Glasco was found unconscious in his hotel room Wednesday. They said he apparently had been drinking.

He was taken to the Kalorama Convalescent Home, 2101 Kalorama rd. n.w., and later transferred to Sibley Hospital.

Gallinger Reopens 51-Bed TB Section

Gallinger Hospital yesterday reopened a 51-bed section of its tuberculosis service, closed since August, 1945, because of a nurse shortage, to help handle increased TB cases disclosed by the recent mass chest X-ray.

Gallinger Superintendent Alvin R. Sweeney said "we still don't have enough help to do a good job but we will give our best service we can under the circumstances."

"It is hoped that we will be able to accept patients who are really in need of hospital care and for whom we can do the most good," he added. The additional 51 beds brought the total of tuberculosis beds to 226.

The new beds will be assigned to Negro men patients, who comprise the largest group awaiting hospital treatment as a result of the chest X-ray, hospital officials said.

1700 Dogs Inoculated

More than 1700 dogs were inoculated during Wednesday sessions of the Health Department's summer antirabies vaccination campaign, health officials said yesterday. This was the second largest number to be vaccinated in a single day this year.

Only seven more free vaccination sessions remain before the August 31 closing date, officials warned. Vaccinations are performed at 12 centers, from 4 to 6 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Face Garbage Charges

Alexandria police arrested 12 men yesterday on charges of transporting garbage through Alexandria in unmarked containers. All posted $50 bonds for appearance in Alexandria Police Court today.

Police said the men, most of whom lived in Woodbridge, Va., or Fairfax County, were carrying garbage from Washington restaurants to pig farms in open trucks. The garbage, police said, spilled into streets when the trucks stopped for traffic lights.

James E. Watson Dies at 84; GOP Senator From Indiana

James Eli Watson, 84, "old guard" Republican leader who symbolized a by-gone era of low taxes, high tariff and isolationism, died yesterday morning at Garfield Hospital.

"Sunny Jim" from Indiana, who served in Congress under eight Presidents and was Republican leader of the Senate during President Hoover's administration, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at 8:25 a. m.

Watson was found unconscious in bed at his apartment at 1026 16th st. n.w. at 4 a. m. by his wife. Rushed to the hospital, he never regained consciousness.

He was hospitalized with inter-cerebral hemorrhage last October 12. He returned home in December and recovered fairly good health.

Was "Ultra-Conservative"

Watson styled himself an "ultra-conservative" but vigorously denied being a "standpatter." He was elected in 1894 to the House, where he served for 12 years. He was elected to the Senate in 1916 and served until swept out of office by the Roosevelt landslide of 1932.

After leaving the Senate, he established a law office here at 815 15th st. n.w. But when Congress was in session and major political debates raged in the Senate, his tall, lean figure was a familiar sight at the Capitol.

A lieutenant of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge after the First World War, he dedicated his organs to the American people's participation in the League of Nations.

In the House, he became popular as a jovial, hand-shaking storyteller, and was a protégé of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, the iron-handed Speaker. He led the move for creation of a Tariff Commission.

Three times, in 1920, 1924 and 1928, he was prominently mentioned for the Republican presidential nomination. He campaigned openly for the nomination in 1928. But when Hoover was named, Watson campaigned for Hoover's election and then served as Hoover's Senate leader.

Born in Winchester, Ind. November 2, 1863, he settled in Rushville, Ind., to practice law after his graduation from DePauw University. First elected to the House at the age of 30, he left Congress in 1909 to run unsuccessfully for Governor of Indiana against Thomas R. Marshall, who then later became vice president under Wilson. Watson practiced law until elected to the Senate in 1916.

Announcement of his death brought forth a flood of eulogies from Capitol Hill. The Senate unanimously adopted a resolution of regret.

He leaves his wife, the former Flora Miller of Winchester, Ind.; a daughter, Mrs. Ernest Gross of Washington; three sons, Edwin G. Watson, mining engineer; Joseph W. Watson, died early today.

Mrs. Annie Sayre

False Crash Alarm
A farm woman's report to police—a plane overhead, a loud crash, then flames and smoke—sent two planes over the Blue Ridge Mountains near Winchester yesterday in search of a cracked-up ship.

The searching party, plus several volunteer airmen, quit, however, after one pilot sighted the object: sawdust burning in a very normal way, at a mountain saw mill. The spot was about 12 miles southeast of Winchester.

Virginia State police said the farm woman, of near Millwood, apparently mistook a clap of thunder during a thunderstorm for a plane crash.

Prudential Opens New Quarters

The Prudential Building Association opened its new home yesterday at 1338 G st. n.w., to the accompaniment of an impressive display of floral tributes from well-wishers. E. J. Carlson, secretary, served as head of the reception committee.

Bought by the association two years ago, the building has been completely remodeled and furnished to meet its particular needs. One of the outstanding features of the equipment is the electrical control device which drops the record used in working hours into a fireproof vault by pressing a button.

A large room in the basement has been set aside for meetings of building and loan executives.

Chicago to Trade In Apple Futures

Chicago, July 29 (AP)—Trading in apple futures will start on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange August 16, the exchange announced today. It will mark the first time apple futures have been traded on an organized market, the exchange said.

Initial trading will be in Washington State "Delicious" apples for delivery in 1948 and January, 1949, and in Washington State "Winesap" for December, 1948, and February, 1949, delivery. One contract will consist of a carlot of 800 boxes.

C. S. Borden, exchange president, said, "The inherent risks of the expanded apple industry undoubtedly will be lessened considerably after the opportunity to hedge is available. The futures market will afford the insurance and likewise tend to stabilize heretofore highly erratic price movements."

New York, July 29 (AP)—The stock market ran headlong into speculative indifference today and prices dropped all along the line. The day's business amounted to only 750,000 shares, one of the lowest totals of the year. This compared with 840,000 Wednesday.

Losses ranged from fractions to a peak of nearly 3 points. A handful of gains were posted but most were a point or less. Tobacco issues made the best showing. Demand was stimulated by news that most major cigarette makers had boosted prices for the year to a while but failed to hold their gains.

Highly favorable business news continued but was able to exert little influence on the trend of prices. The administration's price control program was given careful study although Wall Street generally agreed with Republican leaders that it had little chance of passage, either in whole or any important part. The belief persists in the financial district—despite a few financial contrivances—that the special session of Congress will wind up its affairs without tackling controversial legislation, especially any that would authorize new business controls.

Testimony by Thomas B. McCabe, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, made a deeper impression. Speaking before the Senate Banking Committee, McCabe came out in favor of many of the ideas that were proposed earlier this year by Governor Eccles, former chairman of the board, who was denoted by President Truman. Eccles proposals at the time were condemned in no uncertain terms by leaders in the business and financial community.

The fact that McCabe recommended higher reserve requirements for Federal Reserve banks was taken as a clear-cut warning that strong and dangerous inflationary factors are still working in the Nation. The warning could not be ignored by the financial district despite the fact that most bankers don't like McCabe's proposal.

But McCabe's testimony gave Wall Street something to think about in addition to the Republican strategy to lick inflation by voluntary control methods.

Westinghouse Reports Record Production

New York, July 29 (AP)—Westinghouse Electric Corp. today reported a record production of $424,456,102 for the first six months of 1948.

Unfilled orders on hand at the end of June totaled $686,615,274, compared with $673,496,915 at June 30 of last year.

The company reported net earnings for the first half of $24,941,100, equal to $1.83 a common share, as against $21,735,442, or 59 cents a share in the first half of 1947.

Orders booked in the first six months totaled $467,753,265, compared with $418,118,817 for the same period last year.

BASEBALL OFF THE CUFF:

Leo Durocher is a managerial success and a box office flop since erupting into the Polo Grounds. That he hasn't been embraced with open arms by the Giants' fans who are a queer breed teed off on a hate for anything with a Brooklyn stamp is evidenced by recent attendance figures.

Since taking over the Giants, Durocher has led his new charges to nine wins in 13 starts as of yesterday, the Giants' best pace of the season. Under his aegis, the Giants' lattered pitching staff has come to life, gone the route eight times and turned in four shutouts.

But it was something less than a triumphant return of the Giants to the Polo Grounds under Durocher the other day when they finally showed up on their home lot. They were greeted by their smallest night crowd of the year, 24,829 paid, and the next day they played to their smallest out in front of Jints.

THERE WAS the suggestion when Durocher was still with the Dodgers that Branch Rickey was raising a loud squawk over Leo's manipulation of his players, particularly when he shifted Catcher Bruce Edwards to third base. The mild-mannered Shotton would be more easily bent to the will of Rickey, it was assumed.

But that hasn't happened. Shotton did get Catcher Edwards off third base, but apparently it was not in obedience to any command of Rickey's because the next day Catcher Edwards showed up as the leftfielder of the Dodgers.

And Rickey now is refuting the story that he gave Durocher a fast deal by incorporating in fine print in Durocher's managerial contract a provision that Durocher could be let out on 10 days' notice. "There was no fine print," says one Brooklyn official. "Durocher knew what kind of a contract he was signing. Rickey had the release clause in there because he had to protect himself against the possibility that Durocher would get into trouble again, and force Rickey to fire him."

SOMETIMES BALL PLAYERS do nice things. They've been pictured as nickel-nursing mercenaries who grudgingly leave tips for $4 meals and are aggrieved when they have to pay full price for anything.

And so it was refreshing to learn the other day that a ball player, even a ball player on nobody's payroll, could be moved to an act of kindness involving a cash outlay. It happened on a Washington street corner where a boy was knocked over by a passing car, and his nose was bloodied but otherwise appeared unhurt.

The lad was plainly jaywalking and getting little sympathy from the car's driver when a big guy came along and didn't like what he saw. He hauled the driver out for hawking the kid out, and then he took a look at the boy's bleeding nose and told the lad, "You get the next taxi and go to a hospital," and into the boy's hand Buck Newsom stuffed a five dollar bill.

ALL IS NOT SERENE with the New York Yankees, apparently. Bucky Harris is cracking down on a Yankee clique that is staying out too late some night and showing the effects in the box scores. He recently got tough with Joe Page, his relief pitcher ace of last season, who has been little help to the Yankees this year.

Page is in Harris' doghouse, even as Aaron Robinson, Harris' No. 1 catcher of last season. The other night in St. Louis when Harris needed a pitcher to protect a ninth-inning lead, he called on Allie Reynolds, not Page. Harris traded Robinson off last winter, Page is probably trading material next winter.

Harris doesn't have any training rules. The Yankees have no set bed-time hour, it matters not with Harris where you were last night, or how late, but how you act in today's ball game. He doesn't like to tolerate even the better boys if they don't produce for him. The others get even shorter shrift.

Mystery Letter Adds Newness To Departure of Redskins

By Bill Burnett

Post Reporter

It was the same old stuff, each time with something a little new, yesterday as the Redskins left Union Station for their West Coast training camp.

The same small group of beefy young men, some veterans and some rookies, stood on the hot platform and acted self-conscious. There was the usual flurry about baggage, photographers, introductions and goodbys. The same large lady inquired "what's going on here?" and then passed on without interest.

Head Coach Turk Edwards made his customary prediction that "it ought to be a great season." It was the start of his twenty-fourth "great season" of football since high school days.

And of course everybody commented on the heat, and ah-hed over the coolness of the air-conditioned Liberty Limited.

The main thing new this time was Harry Gilmer, their apparent Slinging Sammy Saugh's passing throne. Raugh has been Mr. Passing for the Redskins so long that the few standers gaped at the slender Alabama with mingled awe and doubt.

At the last minute a mysterious letter entered proceedings, enlivening the routine departure. According to General Manager Dick McCann it was written by Gilmer to Sports Editor Arch Ward of the Post.

Heafner's 66 Tops Western

Buffalo, N. Y., July 29 (AP)—Clayton Heafner, husky professional from Charlotte, N. C., set the pace today in the opening round of the forty-fifth Western Open golf championship.

Heafner fashioned a scintillating "34-32-66, 6 under par, over Brookfield Country Club's well-trapped and heavily-treed terrain to take a 1-stroke edge over Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., in the first 18-hole stretch of the 72-hole four-day medal play test.

Hogan, the year's leading money winner, and holder of the National Open and PGA crowns, also had six birdies but lost the chance to deadlock for the lead by threeputting the 225-yard par 3 fifteenth hole.

George Smith, 42-year-old Buffalo pro, was all alone in the third spot with a 33-35—68 over the par 72 course, which meanders 6663 yards over rugged ground.

Cary Middlecoff, the touring dentist from Memphis, also had a 68 wrapped up according to the official scorer, but he called a penalty stroke on himself on the seventeenth hole, where he said his ball budged as he moved a cigarette paper from near it. He wound up with 33, 34—69.

Bosox Blast Tigers, Kramer's 10th in Row

Detroit, July 29 (AP)—Three big home runs including one by Rookie First Baseman Billie Goodman with the bases loaded brought the Boston Red Sox an easy 8-to-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers tonight.

Big Jack Kramer yielded seven hits, pitching his tenth straight win, extending the Sox's American League lead to a half game ahead of the idle Philadelphia Athletics.

The Red Sox got their hits in clusters off Virgil Trucks, collecting a dozen altogether, but the homers did the damage, driving in all but the first Boston run.

Kramer himself belted the first one with nobody on board in the third inning. Bobby Doerr's 100th hit of the season was an arching shot into the left field seats in the sixth that also scored Vern Stephens, who had walked. Then in the seventh after Stephens had singled and Doerr and Stan Spence walked, Goodman drove his four-run smash into the upper deck in right.

Not only did the deliberate Volle, who sports number "96" on his uniform shirt, twist his eleventh victory of the season but he got one of his rare hits and drove in what proved to be the winning run in the second inning. Volle's hit, a bouncing single through an indrawn infield, was his fifth of the year and raised his batting average to .097.

The Tribe got a quick run in the opening inning, which Tommy Holmes started by arching a double off the base of the left center field wall.

The Pirates' lone tally came in the third, which Eddie Beckman began by lining a double down the left field foul line. Dixie Walker beat out an infield hit which moved Beckman to third and Ralph Kiner laced a single into left center field which scored Beckman and moved Walker up a notch.

Both runners advanced on Wally Westlake's sacrifice. Max West was walked purposely to fill the bases. Danny Murtagh hit back to Volle, who threw to the plate to force Walker. Stan Rolek ended the inning by forcing Murtagh at second.

Fashion Idea Catches On Katherine Elkins Tries Magazine Publishing

By Marie McNair

TO A FAMILY which for three generations has made history in the United States Senate, the business project of blond, statuesque Hallie Katherine Elkins is looked upon with more than a little interest by her parents, former Senator and Mrs. Davis Elkins.

MRS. MCNAIR

Katherine, who made her debut two seasons ago at an elaborate ball at the Mayflower, will enter her senior year at Simmons College in Boston this fall. No holiday between terms? No indeed, the lovely Katherine has been busier this summer than she ever was in her young life, getting out a magazine which is set for publication September 7.

In that clever head of hers Katherine has worked up a fashion advertising magazine for Boston shops. She calls it "Meet Boston" and already almost 40 smart and exclusive women's stores have signed on the dotted line.

Sketches of what these shops have to offer are being done by Elizabeth Drury, Katherine's roommate at Simmons.

The make-up is in Katherine's hand and she'll also write a piece each month on what well known Boston women are wearing, her first assignment to cover the wedding of Emily Saltonstall, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, and Richard Evelyn Byrd, Jr., son of the Admiral-explorer and Mrs. Byrd which takes place in Boston on Saturday.

The slick advertising men in Boston are all for it. Katherine, herself, is both surprised and pleased at the way the idea has caught on. Naturally she's waiting with some impatience for her brainchild to issue its first cry. Already there's a fair sized subscription list, and Katherine has arranged for its sale on newsstands and the Boston and Maine, and New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads.

Mrs. Elkins, who has been in town up until now, hopes to get off this weekend to Ventnor, N. J., where Mr. Elkins and his younger daughter, Maureen, are at the family cottage for the season. Then she'll hop up to Boston after a fortnight at the beach to see how her youthful publisher-daughter is faring.

The Elkins children will all be in Boston this winter with Katherine at Simmons. Maureen at the Garland School studying home economics and young Davis, Jr., finishing at the New England Preparatory School at Cambridge. For the summer, Davis, Jr., is in California where he has a job.

TOWN TOPICS: There's the Mayflower Lounge, the Shoreham's Palladian Room, Wardman's Metronome cocktail room and the Congo Room at the Carlton.

But have you heard of the "puppy parlor" at the Colony? The Colony, in case you didn't know—and I didn't, is that quiet, elegant restaurant just across from the Mayflower on De Sales st. It's recently been taken over by Maj. Alex Stuart who is specializing in good food for discriminating people.

The "puppy parlor" is to be downstairs next to the cocktail lounge where your pet pooch will be taken care of while you sip or sup.

Popular Col. Don Lowry is back in circulation after an illness of several months and a loss of 45 pounds by way of the rice and fruit juice diet.

The James Souby's left yesterday for New Orleans, there to board a boat tomorrow for a cruise to Guatemala. They'll spend a week or two, see the country and return to Washington in about a month.

Ask Anne About Preparing Baby's Formula

Is there any reason why I should not boil water for baby's powdered milk formula in an aluminum pan? I give the pan the "cream of tartar treatment" regularly, but it is dark after almost every use.

No, the film on the aluminum is entirely harmless. It is made by the alkaline water of this area, and contains only iron and other minerals that are the natural components of the water.

My husband is allergic to house dust, and I have heard that there is some sort of small machine that can be used in the home to "wash" the air and also as a vacuum cleaner. Do you happen to know what this device is and if it can be obtained locally?

Yes, there is now a home model of an "air conditioner" that has long been used in hospitals. It is a small portable tank, surmounted by a motor, which draws in dusty air. An average-sized room can be cleared of all dust in a matter of a half hour or so. The machine also has vacuum cleaner attachments for sweeping, dusting, shampooing rugs and furniture and other household tasks. It sells for under $11. Further information about it can be obtained by telephoning Ordway 2143.

Your columns have mentioned several times a special product for cleaning snakeskin shoes, but I have not been able to find a store that carries it. Can you give me some more information about this product and where it can be found?

One shoe store on F st. sells a transparent paste polish which can be used on reptile shoes to give them a shine and preserve the leather. The store can be reached by calling Executive 2100.

Several months ago, I spilled a silver nitrate solution prescribed by a dentist into my wash bowl. I have bleached (with laundry bleach) and scrubbed it continuously since, but brownish-gray stains remain. Have you any suggestions?

Silver nitrate stains can be removed by painting them with iodine (which will change the color), then wiping with water and applying ammonia or photographer's "hypo."

Can you tell me how to get some water and alcohol stains off my mahogany dresser? P. L. White marks on furniture can sometimes be removed by rubbing with either camphorated oil or turpentine. If this fails, use powdered pumice, rottenstone or some other scratchless abrasive—cigar ashes sometimes serve—and linseed or sewing machine oil. Mix oil and abrasive and dip soft cloth or piece of felt into mixture. Rub spot in the direction of the grain of the wood.

Can you give me the name of some books or magazines which have illustrations and ideas on decorating and furnishing small apartments in modern style?

There are many ideas on modern furnishings in House and Garden's "Complete Guide to Interior Decoration" (Simon & Schuster). The book costs about $8. But if you do not wish to purchase a copy, you may be able to obtain it in a library. It deals completely and authoritatively with every subject relative to interior decoration, and the numerous illustrations and sketches, many in color, make the suggestions easy to follow.

You can also assemble a wealth of ideas by clipping modern room treatments from advertisements and texts of home magazines. McCall's has colored pictures in its July, 1948, issue, showing decorative treatment of a small home. Many of these ideas could also be used in a modern style apartment. Names of booklets that McCall's will send you for a few cents, give-ing additional ideas on the subject, are also listed.

The green inlaid linoleum tile of our bathroom floor has large white stains caused by alcohol which spilled on it. Can you advise me how these stains may be removed or has the green color been bleached by the alcohol?

It seems rather certain that the color has been bleached by the alcohol. Since it is inlaid linoleum, if the stain has not penetrated too deeply, it might be removed by gentle rubbing with fine steel wool. This will also remove the surface of the linoleum, so the spot should then be gone over with several coats of wax to protect the surface.

If this doesn't remove the bleached area and you feel it is unusable as it now is, the remaining solution is to paint the entire floor. If wax has ever been used on the floor, go over it with a non-inflammable cleaning fluid to remove wax before painting. Keeping a well-polished wax coating on the floor will do much to prevent future stains.

You gave the name of a bulletin on furniture refinishing in your column a while back. I think it was Maryland University. Would you repeat that for me?

The bulletin is No. 49, Revised, "A Touch on Old Furniture," issued by University of Maryland Extension Service, College Park, Md.

I am interested in learning to decorate trays and furniture in Pennsylvania Dutch designs such as American Home and other magazines give. Will you give me the name of a place that gives instruction along this line?

There is a hobby shop in Georgetown which plans to start classes in this sort of painting shortly after Labor Day. If you will call Dupont 8363 and request a schedule of the classes, it will be mailed to you when available.

Our aluminum cooking kit, composed of seven pieces, became considerably blackened during our last camping trip a week ago. To remove this thick outside crust, I placed the pans in a galvanized iron bucket in water to which I had added a washing powder and household ammonia and placed it over a low fire for an hour. I left the pans in the water overnight. This did remove the black crust from the outside of the pans, but the resulting stained water also stained both inside and out of the pans. Scouring powder, steel wool, and simply washing with soap powder have failed to remove the stains. Is there anything else I can try?

The stain is probably the discoloration which develops on all aluminum when in contact with alkalis and water. Boiling a vinegar or cream of tartar and water solution in the utensils should brighten the inside of them. Or, placing them in the same large bucket in which you boiled them before and adding 2 teaspoons of cream of tartar to each quart of water should brighten them all over. Instead of cream of tartar you could use a cup of vinegar to each 2 quarts of water. Boil until the discoloration is gone. If it is not entirely removed in 15 to 20 minutes, it will probably be sufficiently loosened so that scouring with steel wool soap pads will finish the job.

MRS. E. L. BARTLETT, wife of the Alaska Delegate, prepares old-fashioned sourdough hot cakes in a new-fashioned way on an electric grill in her Washington home. The Bartletts and their two daughters, Doris Anne, 14, and Susie, 7, live at 1718 33d pl. se.

Mrs. Bartlett Tells Sourdough Secret

Alaska's Food Has Pioneer Flavor

This is the eighth in a series of by plane and the cold upper articles on regional cookery, featuring the recipes and menus of out of bounds.

A typical Alaskan Sunday morning breakfast, featuring the pancakes, might include the following:

Mrs. Bartlett says:
Wild Strawberries
Bacon Eggs
Sourdough Hot Cakes
Brown Sugar Sirup
Coffee

There are lots of wild strawberries, as well as wild blueberries, cranberries and transparent red huckleberries at certain seasons in Alaska.

The liking for brown sugar sirup there is largely a result of early transportation difficulties. Mrs. Bartlett says. Packaged food was easier to ship or "pack" than bottled food, so the early Alaskans made sirup from brown sugar to go with flapjacks.

Here's the way Mrs. Bartlett makes the hot cakes. She says old-time camp cooks didn't use as many ingredients as she does.

SOURDOUGH HOT CAKES
The night before the cakes are to be served, mix together 1/4 cup of the starter (which looks something like buttermilk), 2 cups lukewarm water and enough flour to make a thick dough that will still pour. Beat well together and let set overnight.

In the morning, take out about 1/4 cup of this mixture to save as a starter for the future. Keep it in a jar in the refrigerator.

To the rest of the mixture, add 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1 beaten egg. Last of all, stir in 1/4 teaspoon soda, mixed with 1 tablespoon water. If dough seems too thick, thin to consistency you like. Fry thin pancakes in small amounts of grease on hot griddle.

CAMP PUDDING
3 cups flavor
1/4 cup butter
1 large cup sugar
Pinch salt
1 pound dried apricots
Simmer apricots a few minutes.

About the delicious wild elderberry jelly, sweet mustard pickles, pepper relish, and watermelon rind being put on a Virginia farm and sold by mail order? These delicacies are made by old family recipes, shipped in attractive containers, and make a nice gift for friends or family.

Dishes are not only washed but sterilized in one of the latest model home dishwashers. Even though tap water isn't piping hot, it is boosted to sterilizing temperature by a heater built right into the dishwasher. The machine is entirely automatic. You set the dial and it starts to work—heats the water, washes the dishes, rinses and sterilizes them, washes itself, then pops its lid open while a gentle flow of air dries the dishes.

A folding ladder attached to the inside of the closet door makes the back of the lower shelf and the entire top shelf as convenient as a dresser drawer. All shelf space is live space if you can reach it. The special ladder is held to the inside of the door with four screws. Out of use, the two rubber-treaded steps are out of sight. Close them up and hook them flat against the door. Idea for the steps was born after the designer had spent years getting his 8-foot wife's hats from the top shelf.

Eliahu Epstein Is Host At Private Film Showing; ECA Taps Schlesinger

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

YESTERDAY afternoon Eliahu Epstein, special representative of the state of Israel, staged a private showing of two Palestine-made films in the Department of the Interior Auditorium. There is an interesting story about the second film (the first is a newsreel titled "Israel Reborn"), and at risk of treading Coe's toes we'll tell it. Back in Biblical days land around the Dead Sea was extremely fertile. A few years ago a group of 40 energetic young Jews decided to stake out a homestead on the Dead Sea shores and revitalize the land by washing out the salt.

It was a tough job no matter how you look at it, but they persisted (don't ask about the exhausting process) and eventually sweetened the ground sufficiently to raise bumper crops of vegetables. They had scarcely achieved success when Arab forces came along and destroyed everything.

Now they are back for the second time starting at scratch. In between, though, their efforts were filmed by Joseph Krungold and Norman Lourie, a brace of Hollywood directors who at present are turning out a Palestine documentary film monthly and releasing them through 20th Century-Fox. The film, which runs a scant half hour, is called "A House in the Desert" (Beit Ha'arava) and last year, before the Communist coup, was awarded second prize at the Prague moving picture exposition.

India's Ambassador Arrives

FRIENDS of clever Asaf Ali, India's first Ambassador to Washington, will be interested in his new job. He has been appointed governor of Orissa, an east coast province which, though small, is becoming increasingly important due to stepped-up industrial expansion.

The new Ambassador from India, Sir Benegal Rama Rau, who arrived last Sunday with his daughter, is one of India's most widely experienced civil servants. Born in 1889, he was educated at Madras University and King's College at Cambridge. He entered civil service in 1913 and since then has held down such posts as Deputy High Commissioner for India in London, High Commissioner to the Union of South Africa,

Secretary to the Round Table Conference and Joint Select Commission of Parliament on the India Bill—while his first big job was financial advisor to the Simon Commission back in 1928-1930 and his last, heading of the Indian Liaison Mission to Japan.

His daughter, Sandatha Rama Rau, polished off her education here at Wellesley and authored a book "Home to India," which achieved considerable acclaim. Lady Rama Rau, by the way, is due to arrive in this country August 9th.

ECA Gains Prize-Winner

THE ECA these days is tapping some of our most intelligent men. Just off to Europe is Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., the still-under-30 Pulitzer Prize winner for his "Age of Jackson." Arthur is to be a special assistant to roving Ambassador Averell Harriman and will specialize in research during the few months remaining before returning to his teaching job at Harvard.

Arthur has the extraordinary talent of being able to scan a printed page and assimilate its contents. So it was no surprise to his friends that during the few weeks between Harvard's summer closing and his departure to Europe that Arthur turned out a book of political essays.

Arthur is probably this country's greatest expert on the Communist Party—his analysis of Communist activities was published some months ago—and he is an ardent advocate of the ADA (American Democratic Action) and was largely responsible for ADA policy being discussed before the Platform Committees at the two major party conventions.

On the side, Arthur is working on a monumental tome, "The Age of Roosevelt," which will take him several years to complete and will undoubtedly be the ultimate summing up of FDR. His wife, Marion, is the daughter of Dr. Walter Cannon, the famous Boston physician. One sister was a former cultural attaché in China, a second is married to John Fairbanks, the learned Chinese scholar, while the third is the wife of Cleveland's Dr. Douglas Bond, who is chairman of Cleveland's new hospital, endowed by Mrs. Harold Hanna, and devoted exclusively to the study of psychiatry.

Alpha Xi Delta Members to Meet in Convention

Alpha Xi Delta has just dispatched an X-Ray machine, baby incubator, as well as other equipment to the dispensary which they opened in Noordwyck village in Holland, which they adopted two years ago, and to which they have secretary, Miss Edna Barr, and just fulfilled a pledge of $10,000, which was used for food, clothing and medicine.

The national fraternity consisting of 21,000 members in 170 college and alumnae chapters carried on an active service program throughout the war and received Mrs. Beverley Robinson of Washington a citation from the American Red Cross "for exceptional service on behalf of humanity."

Alumnae chapters to be represented are Baltimore, Buckhannon, W. Va.; Charleston, W. Va.; Morgantown, W. Va.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Pittsburgh, Wheeling, W. Va.; and the National Fourth vice president, Mrs. A. Lawrence Flenner of Wilmington, Del.

A formal banquet will be held at 8 p. m. Saturday at the Wardman Park Hotel. J. Edward Murphy of Wilmington, Del., National Inspector of the Sigma Nu Wilmington and Washington.

Gathings to Attend Arkansas Wedding

Mrs. E. Cander Gathings, wife of Representative Gathings, of Arkansas, and daughter, Miss Louise Gathings, are in eastern Arkansas where they will attend the wedding tonight of Mrs. Gathings' brother, Capt. Otto Rollage Kirkpatrick, of the Air Force, to Miss Rosemary Haven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Franklin Haven of Forrest City, Ark.

Miss Gathings will be a junior bridesmaid in the bridal party. The wedding will be solemnized tonight at 8 o'clock in the First Methodist Church at Forrest City. A reception will follow at Thelrose, the Haven family estate.

Alaskan Recipes

just sufficient to soften them. Lightly cover with dry bread crumbs. Top with the sauce, sprinkle with paprika, and bake in hot oven (450° Fahrenheit) for 20 minutes. Baste several times.

FAVORITE Alaska cake is one made with dried apples. It has a nutlike flavor, says the wife of the Alaskan delegate, in spite of the fact that the recipe includes no nuts. It is served in thin slices, as is a fruit cake.

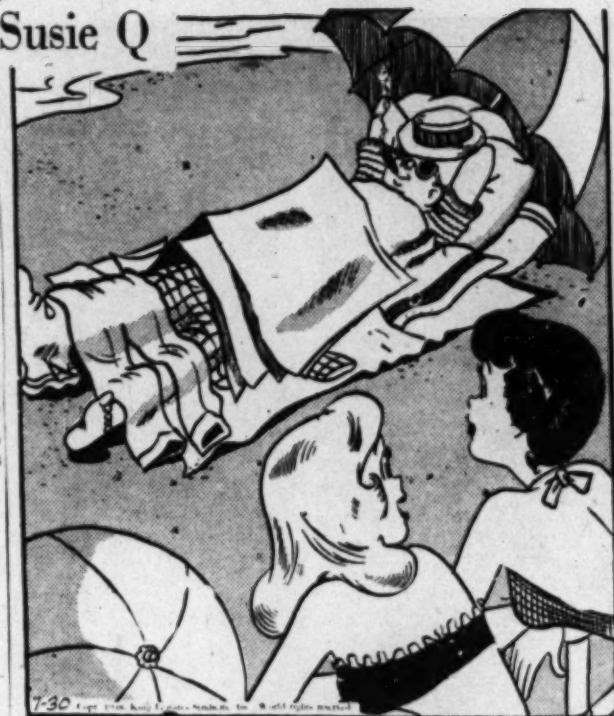

DRIED APPLE CAKE

2 cups sugar
1 cup butter
1 cup water
1 cup molasses
2 cups dried apples
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves
4 eggs

Enough flour to make stiff batter

Cream the butter, add the sugar, then the molasses. Add beaten egg yolks, then sifted dry ingredients and water, alternately. Add the dried apples (soaked overnight and cooked slightly) and beaten egg whites. Bake in a loaf or flat cake things up more evenly.

When a cut of meat includes choice portions and those less desirable, such as a sirloin steak, try to serve a little of each to each person. It proves what a good carver you are as well as divides things up more evenly.

Working Students' Ranks Grow

The cost of education is higher today than ever before—but this need not stop a boy or girl from enjoying a college education. In the August issue of Glamour a four-page article points out solutions to this problem. The real test, according to the magazine, lies in the willingness of parents and school to combine forces with the student.

Most colleges today, as well as many business organizations and clubs, offer scholarships. Contrary to popular belief, there is no longer any loss of prestige connected with receiving financial aid. In fact, as many as 60 per cent of the outstanding members of a class are often scholarship students. The magazine also explodes the notion that a student must be of Phi Beta Kappa caliber to qualify for a scholarship—the B, and even the C plus student is often eligible.

Glamour talks about self-help as well as scholarship-help. A student at Arizona State College works as a waitress 20 hours a week, and in return receives her room and board. A girl at Emira College is a baby-sitter, sells cosmetics, works in the college information room, and waits on table—all the while maintaining a B average. College Vocational Bureaus offer interested students jobs as typists, library assistants, tutors, book-store clerks, mimeographers. Further aid on the part of the college is furnished by self-help dormitories where, by working a few hours a day at household chores, she can reduce the rate of room and board.

Gail Robbins, Warner Brothers cutie, likes to roll on wheels ... and that's good exercise, too. Other rollers are given in Ida Jean Kain's column below

Hot Weather Exercise

Roll, Roll Away Those Pounds That Gather Around Hipline

By Ida Jean Kain

Rolling is a good way to skirt the exercise problem in hot weather. It takes little effort and hits the high spots ... which helps fill in the low hollows. It's smooth exercise.

Rolling is particularly effective in ironing out the fat pads along the outer thighline. But how come these humps and hollows? Well, there is a ball-and-socket joint arrangement at the hips, designed to allow the legs to move in all directions—to the side, across, forward and back, and in a circle. Since we mostly move the legs backward and forward, the muscles along the outer thighline are not called on to do their share of work, consequently they lose tone and shape.

For an all-around hip slimmer. Lie on floor, stretched to full extension, feet just slightly off the floor for clearance. Roll slowly across the hips and over onto the side thighline. Then reverse the movement, rolling back across the hips and over onto other thighline. Roll slowly—bringing weight to bear on the bulges.

Almost anyone can take that roller. It doesn't twist the back or get the spine out of line—and it requires very little space. And if you don't eat more than you roll, you can roll to a smooth finish in short order.

To doff a bustle ... Lie on back on floor, knees flexed, feet off floor, arms bent at elbows. Roll across hips until thigh is resting on floor. Roll back ... plump across hips again. To and fro with a rhythmic rocking motion to the tune of "Roll Out the Barrel." It's fun.

To roll off the back of the hips ... Sit on floor, knees flexed close to chest, feet on floor, hands clasped just below knees. Now rock backward—and up again, returning feet to floor. Back and forth to the tune of "Rock-a-Bye, Baby."

To stop the spread, try this one ... Sit on floor, legs straight out in front, leaning backward to bring weight to bear exactly on hip padding. Have arms sideback, palms on floor, for support. Give yourself a push with one hand and roll across the hips and over on the other side. Push again, and roll back across the hips.

Keep on rollin' ... rollin' along, for about 10 minutes in all.

Cigarette Lighter Made of Palladium

Chicago, Ill.—A gift cigarette lighter for women or men, made of pure palladium, a precious white metal 100 times rarer than gold, was a feature attraction at the National Jewelry Fair in this city.

Created by Alfred Dunhill, the gleaming white palladium lighters sell for $365, plus tax. The maker said the metal never tarnishes, lasts forever. Discovered in 1903, palladium was too rare to be used for jewelry until a quarter of a century ago. Now, with new deposits found in Canada it has gained wide acceptance. Chief use is for wedding and engagement rings.

On the Town

DESPITE dire predictions about how rain would ruin the business of nature spots like the Roger Smith roof and the Shoreham terrace, things have turned out pretty well. The owners and maitre d's have begun to lose the circles under their eyes and the quiver on their lips. The early part of the season was a bit rough, but the past month or so the weatherman has been more than kind. Of course, if it starts to rain just as you begin cutting that flet mignon, the management has to serve you another of the same without charge. That can run into money.

It will remain a mystery to us why one of the above mentioned places doesn't put an oversized sliding awning over the floor and tables so that when it rains the customers can listen to the patter over their heads while they dine and dance. The initial cost would be pretty steep, but over a season or two they would undoubtedly save the cost and more in drinks and food they don't have to serve twice for the price of one.

Speaking of outdoor spots, the Shoreham terrace is presenting the Vanderbilts and the Andrea dancers. The Vanderbilts are two young men who double on tap dancing and gymnastics. They have a little of the flavor of the old vaudeville teams of years ago. The boys are agile and even go so far as to balance on one another's heads using one foot. Wow!

The other half of the entertainment is furnished by the Andrea dancers, two men and a girl. As you can guess from the name of the act the girl (Andrea) is the feature—her two partners toss her about, one to the other. Andrea obviously doesn't have a bone in her body because she's able to twist herself into the darnedest positions while the two fellows throw her around. If making a living by throwing a diminutive girl around seems a little dull there's always the outside chance that they'll miss sometime and given things up, eh fellows?

AFTER many postponements for sundry reasons Chesapeake Beach Park is going to have the semifinals of its beauty contest for "Miss Nation's Capital." The "semi-semifinals" turned out to be a slightly sad affair a few weeks back. A good portion of the gals never showed up because of the adverse weather that day, but this week we have a guarantee of a goodly female turnout, inasmuch as all the girls are going down on the same bus. It leaves from an undisclosed point in the city, fellows. In addition to the beauty contest, Bring Your Own Champagne!

NEW YORK—Lisa Paravieini, daughter of Somerset Maugham, was married in London last week to Lord John Hope. This was one of the most fashionable weddings of the year. The orchestra was composed of only three musicians, for the guests couldn't dance in the famed Grove House Garden because there weren't any bulbs to illuminate the grounds. . . . All 250 guests were asked to bring their own bottles of champagne. This request was written on the wedding invitation. And all the wedding guests complied and brought champagne.

TEST: George Jean Nathan sat at his favorite table in the Stork Club. A friend of his arrived, wanted to sit at the next table and found it covered with some dishes, unfinished drinks, a half-empty bottle of champagne and two crumpled cigarette packages. The man was told that Colonel Clarke, the Canadian who once was host to Winston Churchill, occupied this next table and had just left with a young lady. "I see there are some cigarettes in the package left by the lady," said the man, "so I assume they're coming back." . . . Nathan examined the other package, left by Colonel Clarke. There were no cigarettes in it. . . . "Sit down," Nathan said, and the headwaiter confirmed it. "Conan Doyle told this to me: when a man is ready to go, he always takes his cigarettes with him. A lady will leave them."

PRIDE: Esme Percy, the London producer, is doing a revival of G. B. Shaw's "Too True to Be Good," which is one of Shaw's talkiest plays. Mr. Percy wrote to Shaw to ask permission to cut some of the wordy dialogue. "Of course," replied the 95-year-old playwright. "In my plays it is necessary to disguise the fact that there is no play."

CHANGE: A half hour before Monday night's Dodgers-Giants game at Ebbets Field, Toots Shor left his restaurant accompanied by Horace Stoneham, the Giants' owner. "We never thought the day would come," sighed Shor, "when Stoneham and I would be going to Ebbets Field to root FOR Leo Durocher." . . . After the game Durocher explained how he had changed the signals used in relaying messages to the coaches and to the players. "The best signals are the gestures which seem natural," Durocher explained, "like bending your elbow, or scratching your nose, or touching your jaw." . . . "But suppose a manager really has to scratch his nose, or touch his jaw?" Durocher was asked. He said: "Then duck behind a post to do it." . . . Laraine Day confessed that she too has a set of signals. "But," she sighed, "Leo won't look up to see them."

CHATTER: The New York Yankees receive $250,000 for the television rights to their home games. This is more than two major league teams draw all season. Next year the Yankees expect to get $500,000 for the television rights, by having different sponsors each week. . . . In Mary Louise Aswell's anthology, "The World Within," Dr. Fredie Wertham broke the story of a Nazi death factory in Hartberg where almost a million mental patients from all over central Europe were exterminated in three years. The murderers have just been tried in Linz: six were acquitted and two received sentences of less than four years each. . . . Glubb Pasha's story of the Arab Legion, a best-seller in London, is being peddled around unsuccessfully to New York book publishers.

Reason: Just before General Clay boarded the Washington bound plane in Germany, some newspapermen at the airport asked him if there was anything specific he could tell them about this trip. "Yes," said General Clay. "You may state, with accuracy, that I am returning to the United States of America for the sole purpose of getting an ice-cream cone." . . . Then, as he walked up the ladder to board the plane, General Clay turned and added: "Strawberry."

Truth: Bernard Baruch, now recuperating from a foot ailment, is waiting for the end of summer to spend some time at his Carolina plantation, "Hobcaw." His friends look forward to their visits at "Hobcaw" and the turkey-shoots in which they all participate. For in the evening, when they sit down to dinner, they can spin their yarns about the hunt—the bull's eyes they scored, the turkeys which charged upon them like enraged elephants, the turkeys which suddenly spoke, and pleaded to be spared, etc., etc. They can spin these yarns without fear of contradiction because the only house rule prescribed by host Baruch is that once within the walls of "Hobcaw" any statement made by a guest must be accepted by others as absolute, indisputable truth.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne
Children's Ideas

How seldom it is that we grown-ups pay any attention to children's ideas! Without stopping to think, we assume that we must have all the answers because of our greater wisdom and experience.

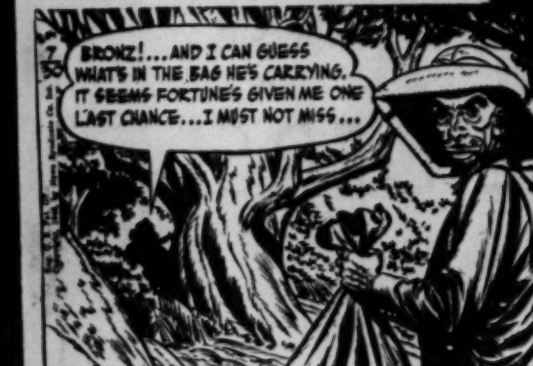

And yet, given a chance, the youngsters often will come through with some mighty fine suggestions. One 7-year-old gave her father an idea about a workable handle for a folding screen door on a house trailer that he hadn't been able to figure out. Another 12-year-old boy worked out an ingenious method of repairing a record-changer on the phonograph. Children often have excellent suggestions for the menu for a picnic.

Of course, one mustn't expect miracles or a 100 per cent performance, but if the youngsters' aid in meeting a problem is enlisted there's a good chance that they will come through with workable solutions. Most important, too, is the experience of being counted on for this sort of help. It gives a feeling of belonging and of importance that is of real value in the growing-up process.

Army Covered Facts in Japan

By Drew Pearson

Now that men are being drafted into the Army again, this column proposes to focus more attention on brasshatism, which the better-type officers have tried to eliminate of late. However, behind General MacArthur's rigid military censorship in Japan some amusing things have happened—revolving round the probable murder of Lieut. Charles Vetter at Kokura, Japan.

The facts in the case point to one of the worst scandals in the Army, so far completely hushed up.

Last year the black marketing of U. S. Army goods by high-up officers of the 34th Infantry Division was uncovered at Kokura. The provost marshal and the assistant chief of staff, both supposed to enforce the law, were caught selling Army supplies.

The man who turned them in was a lieutenant named Vetter, a young veteran of the European theater, with a wife and child back home in Indiana. Vetter was to be the star witness for the prosecution.

But while the division's high officers were awaiting court-martial, Vetter was killed—under mysterious circumstances. Going to Mojito by jeep with a driver, Vetter parked the jeep to do an errand. The driver, returning later, found the jeep stolen and Vetter absent. Later his body was found on the railroad tracks, so badly mangled that doctors could not ascertain whether there had been foul play.

Slapped on Wrist

A subsequent court-martial fined the assistant chief of staff, Lieut. Col. Kenneth Ross of Springfield, Mass., $1000 for selling Army rations. Maj. Elmer Van Zandt of Philadelphia, the provost marshal, was fined $200. Maj. Edward Hartline of Fortoria, Ohio, ordnance, was fined $1500, and Chief Warrant Officer John M. Leavitt of Norcross, Ga., was fined $300.

Significantly, the only private involved, Joseph B. Franzino, was the only man to go to jail. He got three years at hard labor plus a dishonorable discharge from the Army. Yet the evidence showed that Private Franzino was ordered by Major Hartline to transport the black-marketed goods and money. It the enlisted man had refused he would have been subject to disciplinary action.

During the trial not a word of the strange death of Lieutenant Vetter was mentioned. No attempt was made to prosecute. The inspector general declined to comment, and other high-ranking officers spread word that the Japanese might have killed Vetter. Yet they made no effort to apprehend any Japanese.

These are some of the things the Army itself must clean up—or otherwise expect to have cleaned up by Congress—now that draftees are going out to serve their country once again.

Dixie Caucus

Most important disclosure at the Southern Senators' at the Southern Senators' closed-door caucus was a proposed by Senator Dick Russell of Georgia to appropriate $3,500,000 to move the Negroes out of the South and poor white families into the South.

Russell told his colleagues that for some time he had been concerned about families that felt they had better economic opportunity in other parts of the country, and that if they wanted to move, the Government should help them.

Therefore he proposed that the Government furnish up to $1500 a family for transportation and sustenance if they wanted to move. He also proposed a "voluntary racial relocation commission" of three members to study the problem.

Russell said that this idea should apply to the West, North and East as well as the South.

His only worry about the plan was the "church folks" in the South, who, he said, might be opposed to this migration idea if it was rammed down the Negroes' throats. Therefore Russell stressed the idea of voluntary migration.

Other Southern Senators at the caucus backed the Russell proposal unanimously.

They also agreed that there would be no bolting to the Dixiecrats, and that if cloture were voted on civil-rights legislation each would speak one hour against it.

Still Irked at Tito

President Truman rejected a last-minute suggestion from Democratic advisers that he discuss the tense international situation in his message to Congress. The reason, he said, was because the prospects for peace were brighter than they have been for three months. "Conditions internationally are better now than they were three months ago," the President told Senator Alben Barkley, Representative John McCormack and other Democratic leaders. He was visibly irritated over a newspaper report that former Governor of California, Culbert Olson, had talked to Marshal Tito and was optimistic about better trade relations between Yugoslavia and the United States. "There is no foundation to that," snorted the President. The United States, he added sharply, does not intend to baby Marshal Tito just because he has been dropped by the Cominform. Note—One day after the President's optimistic note on the international situation, the Soviets started the largest maneuvers since the end of the war in their zone of Germany.
